Break-in and thefts reported

CHARLESTON—A break-in and the theft of two bicycles and a citizens band radio over the weekend are being investigated by police.

The break-in, at the P.N. Hirsch store on South Main Street, was reported at 9 a.m. today, by Willie Freeze, store manager.

A bathroom window at the back of the building was broken to get inside and a medicine cabinet from the bathroom was thrown into the alley. Offices of Freeze and Frank Lair were entered but nothing was reported taken.

Money in an open cash register was also left behind, causing police to speculate the burglar was frightened off.

A citizens band radio valued at $200 and an antenna were stolen sometime between 5 p.m. Saturday and 10 p.m. Sunday from an automobile owned by Albert Tindall of Potosi, while parked near the home of Dr. Robert Robbins, 1412 E. Commercial St.

Two bicycles valued at $159 were stolen from a garage at 811 Commercial St., the residence of E.L. Brown III. The theft occurred sometime Friday night or Saturday.

Speedgun in use

A new "speedgun" is now operational and is being used on routine patrols throughout Sikeston by the police department. Lt. Thurman Burns, left, of the Sikeston Police Department holds the gun, and at right, checks a speed readout on a passing motorist. According to police, the new radar may be held by hand or used in a police vehicle. It has an effective range in town of about a fourth of a mile. (Daily Standard photo)

Session ends with approval of tax relief

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.(AP) — The Missouri Legislature ended 5 and 1-2 months of work Sunday night, approving a lobbyist regulation bill, tax relief for the elderly and increased junior college aid, but failing to act on measures revising the Campaign Practices Act.

Also falling by the wayside as the clock reached the midnight deadline were bills taking down more billboards to comply with federal law and an extension of the one-half cent sales tax for support of mass trannsportation in St.Louis and Kansas City.

Both the billboard and bus bills were in the hands of the Senate with 15 minutes remaining, but a dispute erupted on the floor for recognition and when the voices subsided, neither bill had been approved.

Failure to pass the billboard measure jeopardizes $12 million in federal highway funds for Missouri. The death of the transit tax could endanger bus transportation in St. Louis and Kansas City.

The lobbyist regulation bill, the last measure to be approved in the upper chamber before adjournment, would expand the reporting requirements of those representing special interests and adds a full-time attorney to the Cole County prosecutor's office to police the lobbying measure.

Although the bill contains some loopholes, House sponsor James Baker said, "This is a reasonable step in the right direction."

Senior citizens would be given increased tax breaks under the circuit breaker legislation approved Sunday. At a cost to the state of nearly $4 million, the bill would allow the elderly to increase the amount of tax deduction on rent.

Junior colleges will receive nearly double the amount of state aid they presently receive if the junior college aid bill given final legislative approval is signed by the governor.

It would provide $20 per student for each credit hour for the first year it takes effect, and 50 per cent of the average cost of providing that hour in the years thereafter. The Coordinating Board for Higher Education would make the determination as to what an average hour would cost. If fully funded, the bill would cost state taxpayers $31 million compared with the $17 million needed under the present formula.

Revision of the campaign spending law ended in the House when Bellefontaine Neighbors Democrat Walter Meyer said, "The people of the state have spoken. We should vote against every change to this bill until it works for the next two years."

The campaign law, overwhelmingly approved during a statewide referendum last year, has been branded as unworkable because of its income disclosure requirements.

In an effort to help candidates for local offices, a change in the law was sought to exempt those spending less than $500 on their campaigns from reporting their income. But Meyer's proposal was adopted, and the House tabled any effort to change the law.

Although the legislature's last day began on a leisurely note, the Senate provided a stormy climax, as several members shouted for recognition in the waning moments of the session which began Jan. 8.

"The Senate will maintain order," Lt. Gov. William Phelps said as he banged his gavel.

"Mr. President, Mr. President," said St. Louis Democrat James Conway as he attempted to gain acceptance of a bill extending the one-half cent sales tax for transporation in the St. Louis and Kansas City areas.

Lankford in fair condition

CHAFFEE–Mayor Les D. Lankford was reported in fair condition this morning in the intensive care ward at Chaffee General Hospital, where he has been a patient since June 9 after suffering a light heart attack.

Mrs. Lankford said he was resting well Sunday afternoon and that he will probably be kept in the hospital for a few more days of rest and quiet.

She said her husband thought he had indigestion for a couple of days before deciding to go to the hospital for a checkup.

Lankford suffered a severe heart attack about six years ago.

Long active in county politics, the former state representative completed a four-year term as presiding judge of the County Court at the end of December and was elected mayor of Chaffee April 1.

1 killed, 11 injured

A Poplar Bluff man was killed and 11 persons were injured in seven area accidents over the weekend, according to the highway patrol. The two fatalities raised the death toll on Southeast Missouri roads this year to 41, compared to 44 at the same time in 1974.

Donald F. Daffren, 56, of Poplar Bluff was killed at 12:25 a.m. Sunday in a single-car accident eight miles north of Campbell on Highway 53.

The accident occurred when a northbound car driven by Daffren ran off the road at a high rate of speed, struck a utility pole, overturned and came to rest on its top.

A passenger, Opal Marie Daffren, 53, of Poplar Bluff, received serious injuries.

Daffren was pronounced dead at the scene and was taken to Landess Funeral Home in Malden, where funeral arrangements are incomplete. Mrs. Daffren was taken to the Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Roosevelt Jackson, 53, of Sikeston received minor injuries at 8:45 p.m. Sunday on Route FF four miles south of town when his northbound car ran off the road and struck a parked car.

Jackson was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Billy Mark Evans, 18, of St. Louis and a passenger in the Evans car, Gerald G. Rodgers, 16, of St. Louis, received minor injuries in a one-car accident at 11:30 p.m. Saturday on Highway 143 one and one-half miles south of the Brunot community in Wayne County.

The accident occurred when Evans attempted to pass another vehicle and lost control of his car, which ran off the road.

Both injury victims were taken to Wayne Medical Center in Piedmont.

Letha Belle Corlew, 79, of Dexter received serious injuries in a one-car accident at 1:10 p.m. Sunday on Highway 114 two miles east of Dexter.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Mrs. Corlew ran off the road, struck an embankment and overturned in a ditch.

She was taken to Dexter Memorial Hospital.

Four persons were injured in a two-car accident at 2:45 p.m. Saturday two miles west of Aquilla on Route M.

The accident occurred when an eastbound car driven by Michael A. Ellebracht, 21, of Puxico struck the back of a car driven by Eugene Scism, 67, of Bloomfield as he attempted a left turn onto a private road.

Receiving moderate injuries were Scism and two passengers in his car, Jessie Marie Scism, 66, of Bloomfield and Sandra Kay Scism, 9, of Florissant, and Ellebracht. The injury victims were treated at Dexter Memorial Hospital.

Ronnie Lee Rahm, 28, of Corning, Ark., received serious injuries in one-car accident at 9:05 a.m. Saturday on Highway 67 five miles north of Neelyville.

The accident occurred when Rahm attempted to pass another vehicle which swerved out and caused his car to strike a bridge.

Rahm was taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Reh H. Crits, 21, of Jackson received minor injuries in a two-vehicle accident at 10:50 p.m. Friday on Highway 34 two miles west of Jackson.

Senate shelves revision of state's criminal code

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Under threat of being filibustered to death, the revision of the state's criminal code has been shelved for this session of the Missouri Legislature.

Tempers flared Saturday as Sen. Ike Skelton, the bill's sponsor, indicated Democratic Floor Leader Sen. Lawrence Lee, D-St. Louis, was the only obstacle to the 299-page measure becoming law.

Lee replied angrily, "This is a bill repealing 400 criminal statutes. If you don't want to talk about it and these 22 amendments, that's okay. But don't put it on my back."

Lee, with help from Sen. Donald Gralike, D-St. Louis, filibustered the bill several hours last week in a light-hearted discussion of related subjects.

Gralike said his opposition to the bill stemmed from "the way it was presented."

The bill had been approved by 70 per cent of both houses. But it came back to the Senate with some controversial amendments decriminalizing "deviate sexual behavior" and "friendly family gambling."

"Take into consideration these objections and bring it back next year," Gralike said.

A 29-member nonpartisan groups of lawyers, judges, defense attorneys and legislators wrote the new code over a five-year period. The project was financed by federal anticrime funds.

Skelton said the revision would have made penalties more uniform to fit the crime. The bill would have been more than the current law on rapists and gun-toting criminals.

It also struck from the books archaic laws covering such crimes as driving a stage coach while intoxicated.

Proponents of the bill had planned to win its final passage this session and correct any minor errors during the four-month 1976 session. The new code would have taken effect in October 1977.

After a guarantee of delaying tactics until the session adjourned midnight Sunday, Skelton set aside the bill.

"You don't know how I hate this," the Lexington Democrat said. "I'm not bitter. Laws shall be made this way or not at all."

Senate President Pro Tem William Cason helped Skelton make the decision, saying the length of time needed for the bill woud hurt chances for other bills awaiting Senate consideration.

The Senate debated the bill 12 days during the first four months of the session, approving it in early May. The House passed the bill Friday after spending all week on it.

Rep. Harold Holliday, who handled the bill on the House floor, said, "It would be a shame if all that time was wasted."

The Kansas City Democrat called the bill "one of the most important pieces of legislation up this session."

Burglars, vandals hit

A garden tiller valued at $200 was stolen Sunday or early today from a shed at Cline Nursery on Linn St.

The burlgary was reported by Curtis Cline, 947 Lake St., owner of the nursery.

The Sikeston Police Department today also reported three other burglaries and one case of vandalism.

A bicycle, valued at $25 to $30, was stolen between 6 and 9 p.m. Wednesday from the front porch of the Brenda Johnson home, 126 Second St.

An undetermined amount of money was stolen between 2 and 8:30 p.m. Saturday from an unlocked car owned by Anthony Melton, 730 Smith St. The car was parked at 1505 E. Gladys St. at the time of the burglary.

A citizen band radio antenna, valued at $25, was stolen between 10:30 and 11:35 p.m. Friday from atop the trunk of a car owned by James Melton Ray of Sikeston. The car was parked at Satterfield Skating Rink on Anderson and Applegate streets at the time of the incident. It appeared that burglars had also attempted to steal a citizen band radio from the car.

Gary Brown, 807 A. W. Gladys St. reported a broken windshield in his car parked at his address. The windshield was broken between 10 p.m. and 10 a.m. June 9 or 10, apparently by a thrown rock.

2 injured here

Two people received minor injuries in two traffic accidents in Sikeston over the weekend.

William Noah Emmons, 71, McClure, Ill., received minor injuries in a two-vehicle accident at 2:05 p.m. Friday at the corner of South Main St. and the road leading into Sikeston IGA.

Emmons was a passenger in a car driven north on South Main Street by Iva Emmons, 61, of McClure, which was stopped to make a left turn onto the IGA road. The Emmons vehicle was struck in the rear by a vehicle driven by Ruth Etta Burch, 43, of 410 William St., who stated that a third car traveling in front of her car, changed lanes, causing her not to see the Emmons car in time to stop.

A motorcyclist received minor injuries in a two-vehicle collision at 7:40 p.m. Sunday on the corner of South Main and Virginia streets.

The accident occurred when a car driven east onVirginia Street by Cynthia Dee Brock, 18, of 612 Holly Hill Drive apparently failed to see a southbound motorcycle on South Main driven by Gary Holton Rickenbrode, 37, of 610 Carroll St. The Brock car crossed the highway, struck the motorcycle, knocking Rickenbrode from the vehicle.

Rickenbrode received minor injuries.

Fire damages house

Lonnie Ward, 927 Lora, saw smoke coming through his ceiling this morning and rushed to a neighbor's home to call the fire department.

He had earlier installed fire alarm systems in his home, and according to him, he had just returned home from work this morning when, "I heard a fire alarm go off in the attic , looked – and saw smoke coming through the ceiling. Then, I ran to a neighbor's house to call the fire department."

Fire department officials said they received a call from Ward at 10:58 a.m. and twofire trucks were dispatched to the scene. Firemen set up ladders inside and outside of the building, and began to hose down the source of the fire. One of them entered with an oxygen breathing apparatus. Smoke was pouring out of an upstairs attic window.

The blaze, which had apparently started in an old mattress, was soon extinguished, no injuries were reported, and damage estimates were not available.

Burglars, vandals hit

A garden tiller valued at $200 was stolen Sunday or early today from a shed at Cline Nursery on Linn St.

The burlgary was reported by Curtis Cline, 947 Lake St., owner of the nursery.

The Sikeston Police Department today also reported three other burglaries and one case of vandalism.

A bicycle, valued at $25 to $30, was stolen between 6 and 9 p.m. Wednesday from the front porch of the Brenda Johnson home, 126 Second St.

An undetermined amount of money was stolen between 2 and 8:30 p.m. Saturday from an unlocked car owned by Anthony Melton, 730 Smith St. The car was parked at 1505 E. Gladys St. at the time of the burglary.

A citizen band radio antenna, valued at $25, was stolen between 10:30 and 11:35 p.m. Friday from atop the trunk of a car owned by James Melton Ray of Sikeston. The car was parked at Satterfield Skating Rink on Anderson and Applegate streets at the time of the incident. It appeared that burglars had also attempted to steal a citizen band radio from the car.

Gary Brown, 807 A. W. Gladys St. reported a broken windshield in his car parked at his address. The windshield was broken between 10 p.m. and 10 a.m. June 9 or 10, apparently by a thrown rock.

2 injured here

Two people received minor injuries in two traffic accidents in Sikeston over the weekend.

William Noah Emmons, 71, McClure, Ill., received minor injuries in a two-vehicle accident at 2:05 p.m. Friday at the corner of South Main St. and the road leading into Sikeston IGA.

Emmons was a passenger in a car driven north on South Main Street by Iva Emmons, 61, of McClure, which was stopped to make a left turn onto the IGA road. The Emmons vehicle was struck in the rear by a vehicle driven by Ruth Etta Burch, 43, of 410 William St., who stated that a third car traveling in front of her car, changed lanes, causing her not to see the Emmons car in time to stop.

A motorcyclist received minor injuries in a two-vehicle collision at 7:40 p.m. Sunday on the corner of South Main and Virginia streets.

The accident occurred when a car driven east onVirginia Street by Cynthia Dee Brock, 18, of 612 Holly Hill Drive apparently failed to see a southbound motorcycle on South Main driven by Gary Holton Rickenbrode, 37, of 610 Carroll St. The Brock car crossed the highway, struck the motorcycle, knocking Rickenbrode from the vehicle.

Rickenbrode received minor injuries.

Fire damages house

Lonnie Ward, 927 Lora, saw smoke coming through his ceiling this morning and rushed to a neighbor's home to call the fire department.

He had earlier installed fire alarm systems in his home, and according to him, he had just returned home from work this morning when, "I heard a fire alarm go off in the attic , looked – and saw smoke coming through the ceiling. Then, I ran to a neighbor's house to call the fire department."

Fire department officials said they received a call from Ward at 10:58 a.m. and twofire trucks were dispatched to the scene. Firemen set up ladders inside and outside of the building, and began to hose down the source of the fire. One of them entered with an oxygen breathing apparatus. Smoke was pouring out of an upstairs attic window.

The blaze, which had apparently started in an old mattress, was soon extinguished, no injuries were reported, and damage estimates were not available.

Rives man drowns

DONIPHAN--A 60-year old Rives man drowned Friday afternoon while swimming with his son in the Current River three miles south of the Carter County line.

The body of William Jessie Sanford was recovered from the river at approximately 1:30 p.m. Saturday by Bill Wright, 27, of Doniphan.

The body was taken to Edwards Funeral Home in Doniphan.

The search was conducted by the State Water Patrol and Ripley County Sheriff's Department.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

No scheme pays as well as a legitimate business.

The congressional advocates of a full-blown system of socialized medicine, or "national health insurance" as they are calling it now, might do well to think twice before they enact such an expensive scheme. The reason: the results of a poll of practicing physicians by Private Practice magazine indicates that passage of a NHI plan would create a doctor shortage in this country the likes of which we have never seen.

The results of the Private Practice survey, which is based on 28,014 of the journal's physician readers responding (this compares to a base of 1,500 persons sampled in such surveys as those conducted by Gallup and Harris) indicates that:

--92.9 per cent of the nation's doctors, or 197,480 physicians, oppose national health insurance.

--80.5 per cent of this country's doctors, or 171,121 doctors in all, would not advise their sons or daughters to become physicians and practice under NHI.

--75 per cent believe medicine would be more expensive under NHI than private practice; 4 per cent say less expensive; 21 per cent say about the same.

--Far and away the most important result of the survey: 57,820 physicians (a sizable 27.2 per cent) would refuse to practice under socialized medicine. Of this number, 20,237 doctors of all ages will retire rather than practice under NHI. Meanwhile, 37,583 others will continue to work,, but not necessarily in medicine. Some of these would leave the medical profession and take up some other kind of work. Others said they would continue in the medical field, but would either care for non-NHI patients or enter fulltime medical work not involving responsibility for patient care.

When one considers these figures in view of the increased demand for medical care under a so-called "free" (actually taxpayer-supported) health system, the shortage of doctors compared to the demand for their services that would exist is particularly staggering.

JOHN PAUL JONES—
THE HERO WHO DIED ALONE

Everyone knows about government bureaucracy, but to mislay the body of one of America's greatest heroes? That's carrying it a bit far. We're talking about Uncle Sam's first admiral — John Paul Jones. After he helped win the Revolution, he was out of a job so he accepted the rank of rear-admiral to serve in the Russian Navy for Catherine the Great.Cathy had made a good choice because 'good ole boy', John Paul Jones, helped her shellac the highly-touted Turks — one of the very few naval victories in the entire history of Russia.

In 1792, John Paul Jones died in Paris at the age of 45. He was broke and alone. In 1905, it suddenly dawned on our government that the body of its first and great naval hero was nowhere around.

A frantic search by embarrassed clerks through dusty files revealed that the U.S. had ordered Jones' body embalmed for shipment back to this country, yet had failed to have it returned. Now the red tape began. First, we had to get the French government to look for our mislaid hero. Then, finally, the body was traced to an old Parisian cemetery where it had been buried for 113 years. By now, the cemetery had long been abandoned and built-over with shops, factories, and even a hospital. Where under all that concrete, bricks and other construction was the grave? Eventually, a map was found of the cemetery in the ancient archives of Paris (the French are thrifty and throw nothing away), which gave the lot and location of the grave.

Miners were hired to sink a shaft, and then a tunnel, hundreds of feet beneath the buildings to the leaden casket containing Jones' body. They found it!

The embalmers had done an excellent job and the body was so well preserved that an autopsy showed John Paul Jones had died of Bright's disease. The hero was escorted back across the Atlantic by part of the American battle-fleet and buried, with full honors, at Annapolis.

TAMING THE
SPEED DEMONS

The National Highway Traffic Administration and other official and unofficial voices have long been trying to persuade the automobile manufacturers to lower the top speeds shown on their speedometers.

Not only do some drivers seem to take it as a personal challenge to see if their cars can really do 110 or 120, even many normally cautious people may be lulled into the belief that any car capable of such speeds must merely be cruising at 75 or 85.

The biggest of the automakers, General Motors, is finally moving in the desired direction. Beginning next year, the top speed shown on smaller GM cars will be 85 miles per hour, and eventually the change will be extended to larger models. Other manufacturers should take note.

Those drivers who get a thrill out of speed, or just the potential thereof, need not be dismayed. When the nation goes metric, we can all safely hit 100 on the open road — in kilometers per hour, that is. This is approximately equal to 62 m.p.h. (Actually, to stay within the nationwide 55-m.p.h. limit, you'd have to hold it down to around 88 k.p.h.)

Some foreign imports already have speedometers marked off in both miles per hour and kilometers per hour, a preview of the metric transition which will someday take place.

PRELUDE TO ANARCHY

There can be absolutely no doubt that if the collective bargaining bill for public employes works its way successfully through the Missouri General Assembly it will set up machinery that could ultimately destroy orderly, responsible government at every level in the state. The measure is, point-blank, a prelude to anarchy.

The House-passed bill is bad enough, with its heavy-handed blow aimed at public well-being stayed only slightly by a provision to exclude police officers from what amounts to right-to-strike legislation. But the version approved by a Senate committee is inordinately worse. The committee restored police to the bill, making only Highway Patrolmen, National Gurardsmen and deputy sheriffs ineligible to bargain collectively.

Members of the Senate panel who backed this move acted unconscionably. They have thrown the fat into the fire.

The ill-considered bill not only would allow all public workers affected to form unions, but also would provide for collective bargaining and binding arbitration. While it would in theory prohibit strikes, it is ludicrous to think that this ban would prove effective in actual practice. Even a proponent of the principle of unionism for public employes conceded this.

JAMES WESTBROOK, a labor law professor at the University of Missouri-Columbia and chairman of an advisory committee to the state Department of Labor and Industrial Relations, is on record that all public workers, including police, should have the right of collective bargaining.

But Westbrook acknowledges that strikes will occur even if banned by legislation.

"We believe there will be strikes no matter what the law says," Westbrook added.

There is no rational reason to think otherwise. The first time the bargaining got rough, the particular segment of public employes involved would pack up its services and take a walk.

There is also the very sticky matter of binding arbitration. The officials who are elected by taxpayers to run their government are handed a sacred public trust. The officeholders, acting as administrators, hand this trust down to the workers to whom they delegate responsibility for performing a particular public service.

Workers who make unreasonable demands on the governmental body they serve are betraying this trust. They are asking for concessions which could be beyond the ability of their employer to meet, since public officials have a solemn obligation to manage government prdudently and at the consent of taxpayers. Binding arbitration would undercut the will of the people and in the end could abrogate representative government.

THIS NEVER HAS BEEN, is not and cannot be the way of a democracy.

It is total contradiction for public employes to strike or expect to be covered by binding settlements. If teachers, for example, go on a strike, firemen and policemen are affected. It's the same situation the other way around. All of the public is in the same boat. All public workers also are public taxpayers.

There should be open lines of communication between public employes and the administration they serve. Those on the people's payroll have an indisputable right to know the financial condition of the government they serve so that both sides can engage in intelligent discussions of salaries and working conditions.

But there should be no right to strike and severely cripple government in the process, or any blanket of binding arbitration that could bankrupt a government.

A clear indication of the chaos that would ensue if the collective bargaining should be passed is the rift that has developed among some public employes themselves over the pending legislation. Teacher groups reportedly are divided three ways over the merits of the plan. This in itself should be enough to convince the Senate as a whole that the bill is bad news for Missouri.

WHO'S GONNA PULL
THE WAGON

Repeated cycles of inflation and recessions continue to bewilder most Americans and have weakened the condition of the nation's financial system. Now, it seems that the policies that created the havoc in the first place are being followed again--but even more so. The government resorted to large budget deficits to pull the economy out of past recessions. These deficits were in large part responsible for the inflations that followed. So, now, government policy makers are serving out a dose of even bigger deficits. It is estimated that for fiscal year beginning in July the Federal deficit will be close to $80 billion. This one year deficit will be one half as large as the total deficit of $160 billion for the last 10 years.

Congress, as a result of reforms recently instituted, is now required to submit a budget figurs on total spending. In the House, the budget committee was so horrified at the size of the deficit that on its initial vote it opposed even producing a resolution. But, they only have to look around the room to find where the source of the difficulty is. Congress has introduced over 100 spending bills. For starters they are calling for $3 billion in extra spending for an expanded school lunch program $6 billion to provide more than one million public service jobs and a $7.3 billion Federally-aided education program. The list could go on and on.

The nation has been beset by inflation. Labor demands, of course, are an important element in price rises. Unemployment on a national level is around 9 per cent. In some areas, it is even higher. Yet, has anyone heard of wages being lowered in these regions? Heretofore, this had been a clasic remedy for inflation and recession. When the price of labor and other commodities goes down, people can buy more. Corporations can buy more labor and people who are reemployed can buy more goods. But under unemployment insurance individuals can collect as much as $156 a week in some states. With this as a prop, is it any surprise that wages only go in one direction? Someone must pay for these unemployment benefits and the whole other range of goodies doled out by Congress.

So we wonder- who's gonna pull the wagon when everyone wants to ride?

ANGER IS OFTEN more harmful than the injury that caused it.

When Leonardo da Vinci was working on his painting "The Last Supper," he became angry with a certain man. Losing his tempter he lashed the other fellow with bitter words and threats. Returning to his canvas he attempted to work on the face of Jesus, but was unable to do so. He was so upset he could not compose himself for the painstaking work. Finally he put down his tools and sought out the man and asked his forgiveness. The man accepted his apology and Leonardo was able to return to his workshop and finish painting the face of Jesus.

PEOPLE CAN BE divided into three groups: those who make things happen, those who watch things happen, and those who wonder what happened.

John W. Newbern

A MAN WHO had just been promoted to vice president boasted so much about it to his wife that she finally retorted: "Vice-presidents are a dime a dozen. Why, in the supermarket they even have a vice-president in charge of prunes."

Furious, the husband phoned the supermarket in the expectation of refuting his wife.

He asked to speak to the vice-president in charge of prunes.

"Which kind?" was the reply. "Packaged or bulk?"

There is little doubt that we are becoming highly specialized in almost every field of human endeavor. It is one of our strengths. Unfortunately, it's also one of our weaknesses.

The man who devotes his entire time and effort to one particular kind of problem develops special skills and knowledge which make him an expert in that particular area. Without exposure to other concerns, however, he may also develop "tunnel vision." Tunnel vision, says the Wall Street Journal, prevents executives from seeing beyond the special problems of their own departments. It results in a "narrow, one-sided inflexible view."

It's a common ailment—even among otherwise competent leaders. Most managers or supervisors get their start, of necessity, in one specialty or another. The tendency—at the bottom of the ladder—is for people to know more and more about less and less. Unfortunately, the more knowledgeable some individuals become in their own work, the more all-important it becomes, in their way of thinking, and less sensitive they are to the viewpoints of people in other departments.

How does a manager widen his own viewpoint and that of the people under him? The best way is by recognizing the dangers of "tunnel vision" and fighting against it from the very start. He uses every possible contact to broaden his point of view and to understand the problems of the other departments and the business as a whole.

He doesn't build a fence around his department. He makes an effort to understand the jobs of other executives and what their departments are trying to accomplish.

He doesn't automatically take issue with everything they say, and act as if their work is in competition with his own. Nor does he respond in kind when the other fellow does something shortsighted.

He also makes a real effort to see where his activity fits in the overall picture. He knows that many problems cut across organization lines—what's best for his section or department may not always be what's best for the company as a whole. He appreciates the difference between a department and company point of view.

You'll seldom find him mistaking his corner of the office for the whole building.

POULTRY NOW BIG BIZ

Japanese eating habits are shifting from carbohydrates (rice) to proteins. As a result the country faces a severe meat shortage. The Japanese government called for help from the poultry industry, but this business was small, scattered, unorganized, and not geared for mass production.

Mitsui and Company, a large conglomerate with a subsidiary in the chicken feed and broiler business, accepted the challenge. They encouraged the raising of corn in Thailand which they bought in huge quantities for chicken feed.

The company offered financing and know-how in joint ventures, and poultry farms using modern techniques popped up all over the country to supply Mitsui's needs. New refrigeration and storage facilities were built, and modern marketing applied.

Result: Prices came down and the egg and chicken business soared. Broilers now account for 26 per cent of Japan's meat consumption. Egg yield was increased over 11 per cent—from 180 to 200 eggs per year per hen.

Inside Labor
By Victor Riesel

Democrats Under Glass:
Lots of Swinging but Little Cheering At Party's Gala Parade of Hopefuls.

NEW YORK - Gay red, white and blue balloons -- political and plastic -- were bursting all over the glass- enclosed Hudson River Shop Terminal, which the Democratic State Committee had rented for a clamback the other night. The biggest noise came from the Queen Elizabeth II when her whistle roared as she swung from the pier into midstream.

Very symbolic. The whistle almost drowned out Sen. Frank Church as he leaned over to answer one of my characteristically gentle questions. I had just said: "Some of the labor people are saying you're running for President. Are you..."

"I'm flattered," said he above the QE2's whistle blast. There was no doubt he's running. His wife Bethine Church clinched that with a few well chosen parries at me.

So are all the others who ate well at $500 a plate -- Mayor Kevin White of Boston, Sens. Bentsen, Muskie, Huphrey, Wendell Ford (Ky.), Tom Eagleton, Jackson (of course) and the host of hosts, Gov. Hugh Carey, whose labor campaign committee is just now being organized.

They were all there. They were all equal but none was more equal than the others. Each received the most polite, disinterested, bored and perfunctory smattering of applause I've ever heard at a political sit-down -- or stand-up , for that matter.

Well, maybe on a dicibel count Hubert Humphrey did outdo all the rest by a point or two. And one political savant said don't count him out. Apparently no ne among the 843 diners was counting anyone in.

This is not the Democrats' political weakness -- contrary to wide opinion -- this is their strength. By convention time the weakest hopefuls will be brokered out.

They'll have to be pruned, including George McGovern, because of the shrewd politico who didn't come to dinner.Namely George Wallace -- who both Democratic national chairman Robert Strauss and national treasurer Ed Bennett Williams believe will come to the '76 national convention with 1,000 of the 3,008 delegates.

Fact is that no Democrat can win without labor's support. And AFL-CIO chief George Meany is now endorsing "Harry Truman" for President. Meany is more noncommittal than ever. He can afford neutrality. He can afford to bait the Democrats by giving Jerry Ford a "plus" where he used to give Dick Nixon "goose eggs." Meany and his political machinery, the Committee on Political Education (COPE), is the only force which can cut George Wallace down. In 1968 Meany did just that with 55 million leaflets. This slashed Wallace's blue- collar, hard-hat and general labor strength from 21 to 6 per cent in the polls in the final months of that campaign. And by swinging so many labor votes back to Humphrey and Muskie, Meany got them to within a few decimal points of winning the '68 presidential election.

So whomever the Democrats finally nominate will have to get Meany's, therefore COPE's, oficial blessing. And a lot of the hopefuls who were under glass last Thursday night just can't get that endorsement. And while Meany can't crack the political whip over all AFL-CIO affiliated unions, there's considerable loyalty to "the old man," a phrase used synonymously with "chief" rather than the labor presient's age.

Therefore it's significant that not many labor leaders turned out for the swinging party and its oysters, lobster and whipped cream and strawberries in chocolate containers. Don't overlook this.

There was of course, the table of Chick Chaikin's ladies garment workers union. They'd vote Democratic even if the Republicans ran Joan of Arc. There also were some longshoremen, seafares, operating engineers and teamsters. But basically labor's neutrality was as obvious as the big balloons.

So the Democrats will have to come up with a middle-of- the-roader or one slightlyright of center or even the 1968 combine of Humphrey and Muskie, though perhaps in switched postitions if they want the instant wipe-out- Wallace machinery.

Meany is letting them know they can't take labor for granted. And it's more than his freindship with Rockefeller who ewarily and almost disconsolately was playing the Waldorf Hotel, at the Republican state dinner across town the same evening. More frequently these days Meany has been speaking will of Jerry Ford. They like each other, with or without Rockefeller. True, Meany has been criticizing the President's domestic and foreign policies -- especially Henry Kissinger -- but the worst Meany's thrown at Ford is the word "gobbledygook."

As a close Meany watcher, I interpret this as almost a fraternal embrace. So the Democrats are being careful whom they pull out from under glass.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Natural Gas Shortage: A Put-On?

By JACK ANDERSON
with
Les Whiteen

WASHINGTON — A House subcommittee has uncovered evidence that precious natural gas was intentionally held off the market last winter, causing hardship to thousands on the East coast.

The motive for withholding the gas, sources suspect, was to create public pressure for government deregulation of natural gas prices.

Hardest hit were small communities in southern New Jersey, Virginia, and North Carolina, which are served by the Transco pipeline. Transco was forced to curtail its shipments because of shortages in the Golf of Mexico.

A staggering 13 billion cubic feet of natural gas was held back from the market last winter. This threatened 19 firms in southern New Jersey with shutdowns at a time when unemployment already had hit 14 per cent. In Danville, Va., 10,000 jobs in a community of 50,000 were jeopardized by the shortage. And in Tunis, N.C., a fertilizer plant was shut down by the energy squeeze.

Transco's fourth largest supplier, for example closed a field about 50 miles off the Texas coast. This reservoir, under federal lease to Citgo and three other oil firms, was shut down for repairs from Aug. 30, 1974, until Jan. 20, 1975 – timed perfectly to interrupt the flow of natural gas to the North for the winter season.

The House Investigations Subcommittee, headed by Rep. John Moss, D.-Calif., now has evidence that Citgo could have repaired the well during the summer of 1974. This not only would have avoided the winter shortage, but conditions would have been better to work on the well earlier.

The company discovered corrosion in the well's tubing in January, 1974. By April, the corporate brass decided the well would have to be shut down for a "workover." The repairs were planned for the early summer. But mysterious delays held up the work until the end of the summer.

Citgo officials claim they had trouble getting the necessary tubing and a rig to do the repairs. But industry sources say the subcommittee has evidence which disputes the Citgo claim.

Footnote: Two New Jersey congressmen, Bill Hughes and James Florio, asked the house to investigate. Hearings are scheduled this week. The Federal Power Commission is also investigating the gas curtailments.

DRUG CRISIS: An alarming 25 per of America's 190,000 GIs in Europe are so strung out on hootch, hashish and heroin that they can't perform their daily duties properyly.

This is the grim conclusion of a House International Relations subcommittee study, now in the works, which claims 50,000 of our European-based servicemen are "in some way incapacitated by the abuse of drugs or alcohol."

Chairman Lester Wolff, D.-N.Y., found drug abuse in the Air Force comparatively low. But addiction in the Army, he charged, was epidemic. By his figures, at least 12 per cent of the Army troops used hashish or marijuana, another 12 per cent drank too much alcohol and two per cent were on hard drugs, mainly heroin.

Wolff's study blamed the problem on general boredom and easy access to cheap drugs and booze. He also criticized the military brass for failing to help the GIs understand why they have to serve so far from home.

The most menacing new drug form, according to the unpublished study, is a potent marijuana derivative called "hashish oil." A droplet on a toothpick or cigarette or in a drink, once it touches the tongue, has an immedite effect.

Wolff learned that dope rings are smuggling the hashish oil from Pakistan and Lebanon into Europe by ingenious means. The smugglers, for example, have been known to soak a woman's dress with the oil and let it dry. Then a female confederate, wearing the dress, is sent through customs. Once she is safely inside the country, the dress is processed to remove the oil.

The illicit returns, apparently, are worth the trouble. For a quart of hashish oil has the potency of almost seven tons of marijuana plant.

Wolff found that most hard drugs are smuggled by boat and plane from Asia into European cities, particularly Amsterdam. The same elements are present in Europe, primarily Germany, for hard drug addiction as had existed in Vietnam during the GI drug craze, he reports.

Footnote: The Army hotly disputed Wolff's figures, saying Army rehabilitation statistics "do not support the claim." A spokesman said that at the end of March, there were only 7,540 in alcohol and drug programs, with many of these on the way to a cure.

HAPPY ENDING: A California stamp dealer, James Crum, called us a few months ago beseeching our help in getting his Vietnamese fiancee into the United States so they could be wed.

Immigration officials suggested that he meet his bride in the Philippines, go ahead with the wedding in Manila and then request a visa for his young bride.

The ecstatic bridegroom took this advice. He reports from Manila that he will now be able to bring his new wife into the United States after a honeymoon in the Pacific.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

No scheme pays as well as a legitimate business.

The congressional advocates of a full-blown system of socialized medicine, or "national health insurance" as they are calling it now, might do well to think twice before they enact such an expensive scheme. The reason: the results of a poll of practicing physicians by Private Practice magazine indicates that passage of a NHI plan would create a doctor shortage in this country the likes of which we have never seen.

The results of the Private Practice survey, which is based on 28,014 of the journal's physician readers responding (this compares to a base of 1,500 persons sampled in such surveys as those conducted by Gallup and Harris) indicates that:

--92.9 per cent of the nation's doctors, or 197,480 physicians, oppose national health insurance.

--80.5 per cent of this country's doctors, or 171,121 doctors in all, would not advise their sons or daughters to become physicians and practice under NHI.

--75 per cent believe medicine would be more expensive under NHI than private practice; 4 per cent say less expensive; 21 per cent say about the same.

--Far and away the most important result of the survey: 57,820 physicians (a sizable 27.2 per cent) would refuse to practice under socialized medicine. Of this number, 20,237 doctors of all ages will retire rather than practice under NHI. Meanwhile, 37,583 others will continue to work,, but not necessarily in medicine. Some of these would leave the medical profession and take up some other kind of work. Others said they would continue in the medical field, but would either care for non-NHI patients or enter fulltime medical work not involving responsibility for patient care.

When one considers these figures in view of the increased demand for medical care under a so-called "free" (actually taxpayer-supported) health system, the shortage of doctors compared to the demand for their services that would exist is particularly staggering.

JOHN PAUL JONES—
THE HERO WHO DIED ALONE

Everyone knows about government bureaucracy, but to mislay the body of one of America's greatest heroes? That's carrying it a bit far. We're talking about Uncle Sam's first admiral — John Paul Jones. After he helped win the Revolution, he was out of a job so he accepted the rank of rear-admiral to serve in the Russian Navy for Catherine the Great.Cathy had made a good choice because 'good ole boy', John Paul Jones, helped her shellac the highly-touted Turks — one of the very few naval victories in the entire history of Russia.

In 1792, John Paul Jones died in Paris at the age of 45. He was broke and alone. In 1905, it suddenly dawned on our government that the body of its first and great naval hero was nowhere around.

A frantic search by embarrassed clerks through dusty files revealed that the U.S. had ordered Jones' body embalmed for shipment back to this country, yet had failed to have it returned. Now the red tape began. First, we had to get the French government to look for our mislaid hero. Then, finally, the body was traced to an old Parisian cemetery where it had been buried for 113 years. By now, the cemetery had long been abandoned and built-over with shops, factories, and even a hospital. Where under all that concrete, bricks and other construction was the grave? Eventually, a map was found of the cemetery in the ancient archives of Paris (the French are thrifty and throw nothing away), which gave the lot and location of the grave.

Miners were hired to sink a shaft, and then a tunnel, hundreds of feet beneath the buildings to the leaden casket containing Jones' body. They found it!

The embalmers had done an excellent job and the body was so well preserved that an autopsy showed John Paul Jones had died of Bright's disease. The hero was escorted back across the Atlantic by part of the American battle-fleet and buried, with full honors, at Annapolis.

TAMING THE
SPEED DEMONS

The National Highway Traffic Administration and other official and unofficial voices have long been trying to persuade the automobile manufacturers to lower the top speeds shown on their speedometers.

Not only do some drivers seem to take it as a personal challenge to see if their cars can really do 110 or 120, even many normally cautious people may be lulled into the belief that any car capable of such speeds must merely be cruising at 75 or 85.

The biggest of the automakers, General Motors, is finally moving in the desired direction. Beginning next year, the top speed shown on smaller GM cars will be 85 miles per hour, and eventually the change will be extended to larger models. Other manufacturers should take note.

Those drivers who get a thrill out of speed, or just the potential thereof, need not be dismayed. When the nation goes metric, we can all safely hit 100 on the open road — in kilometers per hour, that is. This is approximately equal to 62 m.p.h. (Actually, to stay within the nationwide 55-m.p.h. limit, you'd have to hold it down to around 88 k.p.h.)

Some foreign imports already have speedometers marked off in both miles per hour and kilometers per hour, a preview of the metric transition which will someday take place.

PRELUDE TO ANARCHY

There can be absolutely no doubt that if the collective bargaining bill for public employes works its way successfully through the Missouri General Assembly it will set up machinery that could ultimately destroy orderly, responsible government at every level in the state. The measure is, point-blank, a prelude to anarchy.

The House-passed bill is bad enough, with its heavy-handed blow aimed at public well-being stayed only slightly by a provision to exclude police officers from what amounts to right-to-strike legislation. But the version approved by a Senate committee is inordinately worse. The committee restored police to the bill, making only Highway Patrolmen, National Gurardsmen and deputy sheriffs ineligible to bargain collectively.

Members of the Senate panel who backed this move acted unconscionably. They have thrown the fat into the fire.

The ill-considered bill not only would allow all public workers affected to form unions, but also would provide for collective bargaining and binding arbitration. While it would in theory prohibit strikes, it is ludicrous to think that this ban would prove effective in actual practice. Even a proponent of the principle of unionism for public employes conceded this.

JAMES WESTBROOK, a labor law professor at the University of Missouri-Columbia and chairman of an advisory committee to the state Department of Labor and Industrial Relations, is on record that all public workers, including police, should have the right of collective bargaining.

But Westbrook acknowledges that strikes will occur even if banned by legislation.

"We believe there will be strikes no matter what the law says," Westbrook added.

There is no rational reason to think otherwise. The first time the bargaining got rough, the particular segment of public employes involved would pack up its services and take a walk.

There is also the very sticky matter of binding arbitration. The officials who are elected by taxpayers to run their government are handed a sacred public trust. The officeholders, acting as administrators, hand this trust down to the workers to whom they delegate responsibility for performing a particular public service.

Workers who make unreasonable demands on the governmental body they serve are betraying this trust. They are asking for concessions which could be beyond the ability of their employer to meet, since public officials have a solemn obligation to manage government prdudently and at the consent of taxpayers. Binding arbitration would undercut the will of the people and in the end could abrogate representative government.

THIS NEVER HAS BEEN, is not and cannot be the way of a democracy.

It is total contradiction for public employes to strike or expect to be covered by binding settlements. If teachers, for example, go on a strike, firemen and policemen are affected. It's the same situation the other way around. All of the public is in the same boat. All public workers also are public taxpayers.

There should be open lines of communication between public employes and the administration they serve. Those on the people's payroll have an indisputable right to know the financial condition of the government they serve so that both sides can engage in intelligent discussions of salaries and working conditions.

But there should be no right to strike and severely cripple government in the process, or any blanket of binding arbitration that could bankrupt a government.

A clear indication of the chaos that would ensue if the collective bargaining should be passed is the rift that has developed among some public employes themselves over the pending legislation. Teacher groups reportedly are divided three ways over the merits of the plan. This in itself should be enough to convince the Senate as a whole that the bill is bad news for Missouri.

WHO'S GONNA PULL THE WAGON

Repeated cycles of inflation and recessions continue to bewilder most Americans and have weakened the condition of the nation's financial system. Now, it seems that the policies that created the havoc in the first place are being followed again--but even more so. The government resorted to large budget deficits to pull the economy out of past recessions. These deficits were in large part responsible for the inflations that followed. So, now, government policy makers are serving out a dose of even bigger deficits. It is estimated that for fiscal year beginning in July the Federal deficit will be close to $80 billion. This one year deficit will be one half as large as the total deficit of $160 billion for the last 10 years.

Congress, as a result of reforms recently instituted, is now required to submit a budget figurs on total spending. In the House, the budget committee was so horrified at the size of the deficit that on its initial vote it opposed even producing a resolution. But, they only have to look around the room to find where the source of the difficulty is. Congress has introduced over 100 spending bills. For starters they are calling for $3 billion in extra spending for an expanded school lunch program $6 billion to provide more than one million public service jobs and a $7.3 billion Federally-aided education program. The list could go on and on.

The nation has been beset by inflation. Labor demands, of course, are an important element in price rises. Unemployment on a national level is around 9 per cent. In some areas, it is even higher. Yet, has anyone heard of wages being lowered in these regions? Heretofore, this had been a clasic remedy for inflation and recession. When the price of labor and other commodities goes down, people can buy more. Corporations can buy more labor and people who are reemployed can buy more goods. But under unemployment insurance individuals can collect as much as $156 a week in some states. With this as a prop, is it any surprise that wages only go in one direction? Someone must pay for these unemployment benefits and the whole other range of goodies doled out by Congress.

So we wonder- who's gonna pull the wagon when everyone wants to ride?

ANGER IS OFTEN more harmful than the injury that caused it.

When Leonardo da Vinci was working on his painting "The Last Supper," he became angry with a certain man. Losing his tempter he lashed the other fellow with bitter words and threats. Returning to his canvas he attempted to work on the face of Jesus, but was unable to do so. He was so upset he could not compose himself for the painstaking work. Finally he put down his tools and sought out the man and asked his forgiveness. The man accepted his apology and Leonardo was able to return to his workshop and finish painting the face of Jesus.

PEOPLE CAN BE divided into three groups: those who make things happen, those who watch things happen, and those who wonder what happened.

John W. Newbern

A MAN WHO had just been promoted to vice president boasted so much about it to his wife that she finally retorted: "Vice-presidents are a dime a dozen. Why, in the supermarket they even have a vice-president in charge of prunes."

Furious, the husband phoned the supermarket in the expectation of refuting his wife.

He asked to speak to the vice-president in charge of prunes.

"Which kind?" was the reply. "Packaged or bulk?"

There is little doubt that we are becoming highly specialized in almost every field of human endeavor. It is one of our strengths. Unfortunately, it's also one of our weaknesses.

The man who devotes his entire time and effort to one particular kind of problem develops special skills and knowledge which make him an expert in that particular area. Without exposure to other concerns, however, he may also develop "tunnel vision." Tunnel vision, says the Wall Street Journal, prevents executives from seeing beyond the special problems of their own departments. It results in a "narrow, one-sided inflexible view."

It's a common ailment—even among otherwise competent leaders. Most managers or supervisors get their start, of necessity, in one specialty or another. The tendency—at the bottom of the ladder—is for people to know more and more about less and less. Unfortunately, the more knowledgeable some individuals become in their own work, the more all-important it becomes, in their way of thinking, and less sensitive they are to the viewpoints of people in other departments.

How does a manager widen his own viewpoint and that of the people under him? The best way is by recognizing the dangers of "tunnel vision" and fighting against it from the very start. He uses every possible contact to broaden his point of view and to understand the problems of the other departments and the business as a whole.

He doesn't build a fence around his department. He makes an effort to understand the jobs of other executives and what their departments are trying to accomplish.

He doesn't automatically take issue with everything they say, and act as if their work is in competition with his own. Nor does he respond in kind when the other fellow does something shortsighted.

He also makes a real effort to see where his activity fits in the overall picture. He knows that many problems cut across organization lines—what's best for his section or department may not always be what's best for the company as a whole. He appreciates the difference between a department and company point of view.

You'll seldom find him mistaking his corner of the office for the whole building.

POULTRY NOW BIG BIZ

Japanese eating habits are shifting from carbohydrates (rice) to proteins. As a result the country faces a severe meat shortage. The Japanese government called for help from the poultry industry, but this business was small, scattered, unorganized, and not geared for mass production.

Mitsui and Company, a large conglomerate with a subsidiary in the chicken feed and broiler business, accepted the challenge. They encouraged the raising of corn in Thailand which they bought in huge quantities for chicken feed.

The company offered financing and know-how in joint ventures, and poultry farms using modern techniques popped up all over the country to supply Mitsui's needs. New refrigeration and storage facilities were built, and modern marketing applied.

Result: Prices came down and the egg and chicken business soared. Broilers now account for 26 per cent of Japan's meat consumption. Egg yield was increased over 11 per cent—from 180 to 200 eggs per year per hen.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Natural Gas Shortage: A Put-On?

By JACK ANDERSON
with
Les Whiteen

WASHINGTON — A House subcommittee has uncovered evidence that precious natural gas was intentionally held off the market last winter, causing hardship to thousands on the East coast.

The motive for withholding the gas, sources suspect, was to create public pressure for government deregulation of natural gas prices.

Hardest hit were small communities in southern New Jersey, Virginia, and North Carolina, which are served by the Transco pipeline. Transco was forced to curtail its shipments because of shortages in the Golf of Mexico.

A staggering 13 billion cubic feet of natural gas was held back from the market last winter. This threatened 19 firms in southern New Jersey with shutdowns at a time when unemployment already had hit 14 per cent. In Danville, Va., 10,000 jobs in a community of 50,000 were jeopardized by the shortage. And in Tunis, N.C., a fertilizer plant was shut down by the energy squeeze.

Transco's fourth largest supplier, for example closed a field about 50 miles off the Texas coast. This reservoir, under federal lease to Citgo and three other oil firms, was shut down for repairs from Aug. 30, 1974, until Jan. 20, 1975 – timed perfectly to interrupt the flow of natural gas to the North for the winter season.

The House Investigations Subcommittee, headed by Rep. John Moss, D.-Calif., now has evidence that Citgo could have repaired the well during the summer of 1974. This not only would have avoided the winter shortage, but conditions would have been better to work on the well earlier.

The company discovered corrosion in the well's tubing in January, 1974. By April, the corporate brass decided the well would have to be shut down for a "workover." The repairs were planned for the early summer. But mysterious delays held up the work until the end of the summer.

Citgo officials claim they had trouble getting the necessary tubing and a rig to do the repairs. But industry sources say the subcommittee has evidence which disputes the Citgo claim.

Footnote: Two New Jersey congressmen, Bill Hughes and James Florio, asked the house to investigate. Hearings are scheduled this week. The Federal Power Commission is also investigating the gas curtailments.

DRUG CRISIS: An alarming 25 per of America's 190,000 GIs in Europe are so strung out on hootch, hashish and heroin that they can't perform their daily duties properyly.

This is the grim conclusion of a House International Relations subcommittee study, now in the works, which claims 50,000 of our European-based servicemen are "in some way incapacitated by the abuse of drugs or alcohol."

Chairman Lester Wolff, D.-N.Y., found drug abuse in the Air Force comparatively low. But addiction in the Army, he charged, was epidemic. By his figures, at least 12 per cent of the Army troops used hashish or marijuana, another 12 per cent drank too much alcohol and two per cent were on hard drugs, mainly heroin.

Wolff's study blamed the problem on general boredom and easy access to cheap drugs and booze. He also criticized the military brass for failing to help the GIs understand why they have to serve so far from home.

The most menacing new drug form, according to the unpublished study, is a potent marijuana derivative called "hashish oil." A droplet on a toothpick or cigarette or in a drink, once it touches the tongue, has an immedite effect.

Wolff learned that dope rings are smuggling the hashish oil from Pakistan and Lebanon into Europe by ingenious means. The smugglers, for example, have been known to soak a woman's dress with the oil and let it dry. Then a female confederate, wearing the dress, is sent through customs. Once she is safely inside the country, the dress is processed to remove the oil.

The illicit returns, apparently, are worth the trouble. For a quart of hashish oil has the potency of almost seven tons of marijuana plant.

Wolff found that most hard drugs are smuggled by boat and plane from Asia into European cities, particularly Amsterdam. The same elements are present in Europe, primarily Germany, for hard drug addiction as had existed in Vietnam during the GI drug craze, he reports.

Footnote: The Army hotly disputed Wolff's figures, saying Army rehabilitation statistics "do not support the claim." A spokesman said that at the end of March, there were only 7,540 in alcohol and drug programs, with many of these on the way to a cure.

HAPPY ENDING: A California stamp dealer, James Crum, called us a few months ago beseeching our help in getting his Vietnamese fiancee into the United States so they could be wed.

Immigration officials suggested that he meet his bride in the Philippines, go ahead with the wedding in Manila and then request a visa for his young bride.

The ecstatic bridegroom took this advice. He reports from Manila that he will now be able to bring his new wife into the United States after a honeymoon in the Pacific.

Inside Labor
By Victor Riesel

Democrats Under Glass: Lots of Swinging but Little Cheering At Party's Gala Parade of Hopefuls.

NEW YORK - Gay red, white and blue balloons -- political and plastic -- were bursting all over the glass- enclosed Hudson River Shop Terminal, which the Democratic State Committee had rented for a clamback the other night. The biggest noise came from the Queen Elizabeth II when her whistle roared as she swung from the pier into midstream.

Very symbolic. The whistle almost drowned out Sen. Frank Church as he leaned over to answer one of my characteristically gentle questions. I had just said: "Some of the labor people are saying you're running for President. Are you..."

"I'm flattered," said he above the QE2's whistle blast. There was no doubt he's running. His wife Bethine Church clinched that with a few well chosen parries at me.

So are all the others who ate well at $500 a plate -- Mayor Kevin White of Boston, Sens. Bentsen, Muskie, Huphrey, Wendell Ford (Ky.), Tom Eagleton, Jackson (of course) and the host of hosts, Gov. Hugh Carey, whose labor campaign committee is just now being organized.

They were all there. They were all equal but none was more equal than the others. Each received the most polite, disinterested, bored and perfunctory smattering of applause I've ever heard at a political sit-down -- or stand-up , for that matter.

Well, maybe on a dicibel count Hubert Humphrey did outdo all the rest by a point or two. And one political savant said don't count him out. Apparently no ne among the 843 diners was counting anyone in.

This is not the Democrats' political weakness -- contrary to wide opinion -- this is their strength. By convention time the weakest hopefuls will be brokered out.

They'll have to be pruned, including George McGovern, because of the shrewd politico who didn't come to dinner.Namely George Wallace -- who both Democratic national chairman Robert Strauss and national treasurer Ed Bennett Williams believe will come to the '76 national convention with 1,000 of the 3,008 delegates.

Fact is that no Democrat can win without labor's support. And AFL-CIO chief George Meany is now endorsing "Harry Truman" for President. Meany is more noncommittal than ever. He can afford neutrality. He can afford to bait the Democrats by giving Jerry Ford a "plus" where he used to give Dick Nixon "goose eggs."

Meany and his political machinery, the Committee on Political Education (COPE), is the only force which can cut George Wallace down. In 1968 Meany did just that with 55 million leaflets. This slashed Wallace's blue- collar, hard-hat and general labor strength from 21 to 6 per cent in the polls in the final months of that campaign. And by swinging so many labor votes back to Humphrey and Muskie, Meany got them to within a few decimal points of winning the '68 presidential election.

So whomever the Democrats finally nominate will have to get Meany's, therefore COPE's, oficial blessing. And a lot of the hopefuls who were under glass last Thursday night just can't get that endorsement. And while Meany can't crack the political whip over all AFL-CIO affiliated unions, there's considerable loyalty to "the old man," a phrase used synonymously with "chief" rather than the labor presient's age.

Therefore it's significant that not many labor leaders turned out for the swinging party and its oysters, lobster and whipped cream and strawberries in chocolate containers. Don't overlook this.

There was of course, the table of Chick Chaikin's ladies garment workers union. They'd vote Democratic even if the Republicans ran Joan of Arc. There also were some longshoremen, seafares, operating engineers and teamsters. But basically labor's neutrality was as obvious as the big balloons.

So the Democrats will have to come up with a middle-of- the-roader or one slightlyright of center or even the 1968 combine of Humphrey and Muskie, though perhaps in switched postitions if they want the instant wipe-out- Wallace machinery.

Meany is letting them know they can't take labor for granted. And it's more than his freindship with Rockefeller who ewarily and almost disconsolately was playing the Waldorf Hotel, at the Republican state dinner across town the same evening. More frequently these days Meany has been speaking will of Jerry Ford. They like each other, with or without Rockefeller. True, Meany has been criticizing the President's domestic and foreign policies -- especially Henry Kissinger -- but the worst Meany's thrown at Ford is the word "gobbledygook."

As a close Meany watcher, I interpret this as almost a fraternal embrace. So the Democrats are being careful whom they pull out from under glass.

Some spying lawful CIA report says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the Rockefeller Commission's report outlined a number of "plainly unlawful" domestic activities by the CIA, it also described a variety of circumstances in which domestic spying would be legal and proper.

For instance, the 300-page report released last week stated that the CIA's 20-year program of mail surveillance violated laws which forbid the opening of letters.

However, the commission also stated that "mail cover operations (examining and copying of envelopes only) are legal when carried out in compliance with postal regulations on a limited and selective basis involving matters of national security." The eight-member panel headed by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller also suggested domestic mail openings might be permitted in time of war.

The commission's views lack the force of law but instead are findings of fact and recommendations about what the CIA should do in the future.

The commission described other circumstances which, in the commission's view, would allow the CIA to utilize such spy techniques as infiltration and surveillance in the United States.

Thus, while the report criticized the agency for infiltrating domestic dissident organizations to determine if the groups were planning any activities against CIA installations, it did not issue a blanket condemnation of such activity.

Instead, it said "the agency should not infiltrate a dissident group for security purposes unless there is a clear danger to agency installations, operations or personnel, and investigative coverage of the threat by the FBI and local law enforcement authorities is inadequate."

The report also leaves the agency broad powers to utilize spy techniques against "persons presently or formerly affiliated with the agency, directly or indirectly."

When investigating such persons for possible violation of agency security rules, "the use of physical surveillance is not unlawful unless it reaches the point of harassment," while electronic eavesdropping is permissible if the agency has "the written approval of the attorney general on the basis of a finding that the national security is involved," the report stated.

9 killed in accidents

By The Associated Press

Missouri traffic accidents took nine lives over the weekend.

A Fayette boy was killed Sunday evening when a flatbed truck driven by his stepfather overturned on Howard County Route H near Fayette. The highway patrol said William Thornton McKee, 13, was pinned beneath the vehicle. The truck and a car collided at the crest of a sharp hill.

A two-car crash before dawn Sunday killed Wayne Basler, 38, Festus, and Mark Vacaro, 21, Crystal City. Five other persons were critically injured in the accident on Highway 61.

Donald Daffron, 56, Poplar Bluff, was killed early Sunday when the car he was driving ran off Highway 53 in Dunklin County and struck a power pole.

A 20-year-old St. Louis County woman gave birth by caesarian section Saturday night moments after she was pronounced dead at City Hospital in St. Louis. Linda Boswell of suburban Crestwood was injured when a car driven by her husband struck a slow-moving vehicle from the rear on Interstate 44 in St. Louis. Police said her pregnancy had reached full term.

Killed earlier in the weekend: Wayman W. Pike, 56, Springfield; Harry Ayers, 76, Lamar; Larry Latham, 22, St. Peters, and A.D. Gordon, 50, Kansas City.

Man arrested in court

POPLAR BLUFF—An Essex man who was found not guilty Wednesday of a charge of armed robbery, was arraigned Friday on a charge of breaking and entering in connection with the same incident.

Jesse James Getter, 27, Route 1, Essex, was arraigned in Magistrate Court in connection with an incident at the home of Charlie Dees, 524 Arthur St., which occurred in 1973.

Dees testified in Wednesday's trial that Getter and another man held up at gunpint and took over $500, three handguns and other items. Dees said the men tied him to a sofa, searched his home, and left in a Cadillac.

The jury acquitted Getter after defense attoorney Ted M. Henson Jr. presented a witness from Alton, Ill., who said he saw Getter in Alton every day from about June 20 through July 4 of 1973.

Getter was arrested in the courtroom after the trial.

The other man charged in the robbery is Leonard Charles Hill, 25, Malden. Hill is a fugitive and warrants have been issued for his arrest.

Getter's bond was set at $10,000 pending his June 19 preliminary hearing. Prosecuting Attorney Ernie Richardson could not be reached for comment on the current charge.

Celery is "blanched" during the last stage of its growth. This is done by placing soil about the plant to prevent sunlight from reaching any part of the plant except the leaves. If allowed to grow naturally, the stalks would have a greenish color and a bitter taste.

Scout calendar announced

Summer programs for Scouts in the Southeast Missouri Council are now on the calendar according to Walter Hedrick of Sikeston, council president.

Camp Lewallen opened on June 15 for a seven week camping season. Brad Whatley of Gideon has been employed as camp director for the anticipated 800 Boy Scouts who will camp at the 520-acre site located on the St. Francis River near Silva.

Webelos Camp for 10-year-old Cub Scouts will openJuly 27 for two three-day sessions. Dr. James Boorsma, a Cape Girardeau Webelos Leader, will direct the Camp for 140 Webelos. This is the first year camping has been provided for the Webelos.

Troop 8, sponsored by Trinity Lutheran Church in Cape Girardeau will visit Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico this summer. Jerry Kasten and one other adult from Troop 8 will lead the contingent.

Older Scouts will take a high adventure cruise in the Bahama Islands the last week of June. Don Wandel and Dr. George Blaich from Poplar Bluff will skipper this group.

Joe Kiser of Piedmont camping chairman, has scheduled the annual camp inspection at Camp Lewallen June 26, the same date that the council executie board will hold its evening meeting at Camp.

Inmate tries to kill himself

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—An inmate of the main penitentiary here was in critical condition today at the prison hospital after attempting to kill himself late Sunday, Warden Donald Wyrick reported.

Charles M. Reed, 55, who was serving a five-year term for assault with intent to commit robbery, slashed his wrists and cut his throat in his cell, Wyrick said. He was found by a guard on his normal rounds about 10 p.m.

Wyrick said it was the second time Reed had tried to commit suicide. Reed was received at the prison last September from Jackson County.

Some spying lawful CIA report says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the Rockefeller Commission's report outlined a number of "plainly unlawful" domestic activities by the CIA, it also described a variety of circumstances in which domestic spying would be legal and proper.

For instance, the 300-page report released last week stated that the CIA's 20-year program of mail surveillance violated laws which forbid the opening of letters.

However, the commission also stated that "mail cover operations (examining and copying of envelopes only) are legal when carried out in compliance with postal regulations on a limited and selective basis involving matters of national security." The eight-member panel headed by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller also suggested domestic mail openings might be permitted in time of war.

The commission's views lack the force of law but instead are findings of fact and recommendations about what the CIA should do in the future.

The commission described other circumstances which, in the commission's view, would allow the CIA to utilize such spy techniques as infiltration and surveillance in the United States.

Thus, while the report criticized the agency for infiltrating domestic dissident organizations to determine if the groups were planning any activities against CIA installations, it did not issue a blanket condemnation of such activity.

Instead, it said "the agency should not infiltrate a dissident group for security purposes unless there is a clear danger to agency installations, operations or personnel, and investigative coverage of the threat by the FBI and local law enforcement authorities is inadequate."

The report also leaves the agency broad powers to utilize spy techniques against "persons presently or formerly affiliated with the agency, directly or indirectly."

When investigating such persons for possible violation of agency security rules, "the use of physical surveillance is not unlawful unless it reaches the point of harassment," while electronic eavesdropping is permissible if the agency has "the written approval of the attorney general on the basis of a finding that the national security is involved," the report stated.

9 killed in accidents

By The Associated Press

Missouri traffic accidents took nine lives over the weekend.

A Fayette boy was killed Sunday evening when a flatbed truck driven by his stepfather overturned on Howard County Route H near Fayette. The highway patrol said William Thornton McKee, 13, was pinned beneath the vehicle. The truck and a car collided at the crest of a sharp hill.

A two-car crash before dawn Sunday killed Wayne Basler, 38, Festus, and Mark Vacaro, 21, Crystal City. Five other persons were critically injured in the accident on Highway 61.

Donald Daffron, 56, Poplar Bluff, was killed early Sunday when the car he was driving ran off Highway 53 in Dunklir County and struck a power pole.

A 20-year-old St. Louis County woman gave birth by caesarian section Saturday night moments after she was pronounced dead at City Hospital in St. Louis. Linda Boswell of suburban Crestwood was injured when a car driven by her husband struck a slow-moving vehicle from the rear on Interstate 44 in St. Louis. Police said her pregnancy had reached full term.

Killed earlier in the weekend: Wayman W. Pike, 56, Springfield; Harry Ayers, 76, Lamar; Larry Latham, 22, St. Peters, and A.D. Gordon, 50, Kansas City.

The Atlanta Constitution, one of the largest daily newspapers in the southeastern states, was founded in 1868.

Man arrested in court

POPLAR BLUFF—An Essex man who was found not guilty Wednesday of a charge of armed robbery, was arraigned Friday on a charge of breaking and entering in connection with the same incident.

Jesse James Getter, 27, Route 1, Essex, was arraigned in Magistrate Court in connection with an incident at the home of Charlie Dees, 524 Arthur St., which occurred in 1973.

Dees testified in Wednesday's trial that Getter and another man held up at gunpint and took over $500, three handguns and other items. Dees said the men tied him to a sofa, searched his home, and left in a Cadillac.

The jury acquitted Getter after defense attoorney Ted M. Henson Jr. presented a witness from Alton, Ill., who said he saw Getter in Alton every day from about June 20 through July 4 of 1973.

Getter was arrested in the courtroom after the trial.

The other man charged in the robbery is Leonard Charles Hill, 25, Malden. Hill is a fugitive and warrants have been issued for his arrest.

Getter's bond was set at $10,000 pending his June 19 preliminary hearing. Prosecuting Attorney Ernie Richardson could not be reached for comment on the current charge.

Bitter Growth

Celery is "blanched" during the last stage of its growth. This is done by placing soil about the plant to prevent sunlight from reaching any part of the plant except the leaves. If allowed to grow naturally, the stalks would have a greenish color and a bitter taste.

Scout calendar announced

Summer programs for Scouts in the Southeast Missouri Council are now on the calendar according to Walter Hedrick of Sikeston, council president.

Camp Lewallen opened on June 15 for a seven week camping season. Brad Whatley of Gideon has been employed as camp director for the anticipated 800 Boy Scouts who will camp at the 520-acre site located on the St. Francis River near Silva.

Webelos Camp for 10-year-old Cub Scouts will openJuly 27 for two three-day sessions. Dr. James Boorsma, a Cape Girardeau Webelos Leader, will direct the Camp for 140 Webelos. This is the first year camping has been provided for the Webelos.

Troop 8, sponsored by Trinity Lutheran Church in Cape Girardeau will visit Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico this summer. Jerry Kasten and one other adult from Troop 8 will lead the contingent.

Older Scouts will take a high adventure cruise in the Bahama Islands the last week of June. Don Wandel and Dr. George Blaich from Poplar Bluff will skipper this group.

Joe Kiser of Piedmont camping chairman, has scheduled the annual camp inspection at Camp Lewallen June 26, the same date that the council executie board will hold its evening meeting at Camp.

Late bottle-feeding can cause decay of children's primary "baby" teeth

CHICAGO (AP) — Dentists are seeing a large number of children whose baby teeth are badly decayed because the infants go to bed with a nursing bottle, a Chicago child dentistry specialist says.

Such decay may result in extensive and expensive surgery and may even roduce damage to the permanent teeth, Dr. Robert Cooley said.

Cooley, chairman of the pedodontics department at Northwestern University dental school and director of dental services at Children's Memorial Hospital, said in an interview he performs surgery on at least one child a week for this problem and sometimes two or three.

He said there are no studies showing how widespread the problem is nationwide but that other dentists also report seeing such decay.

The primary teeth, or so-called baby teeth, start emerging at about 6 months. The problem of decay is seen in children 18 to 30 months of age who are given bottles for prolonged periods, Cooley said.

These children are put to bed for a nap or a night's sleep with a bottle filled with soft drinks, fruit juice, sugar water or other sweetened liquid, or a pacifier dipped in honey, he said.

But even milk is known to cause decay when nursed from a bottle for a long period of time because the enzymes in the mouth convert lactose — milk sugar — to glucose, a type of sugar which can contribute to decay, Cooley said.

By the time a child is a year old he should be weaned from the bottle anyway and taught to drink from a cup and eat solid food, which helps clean the teeth, Cooley said.

Once young children have decayed teeth, they must be hospitalized for dental repair because they cannot cooperate in the dentist's office. Cooley said two or three hours of surgery is necessary and it must be done under general anesthetic. The operation and hospital stay may cost $700 to $900, he said.

Ann Landers

Avid reader writes in another method suggested to protect frightened women against attackers

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed two letters in the last several weeks advising women on how best to protect themselves against rape. The last letter advised screaming, kicking, karate chops, etc. I hope you will print my letter which is based on informatin from an expert. He is Frederic Storaska, founder of the National Organization for the Prevention of Rape and Assault.

According to Mr. Storaska, a woman should never scream, struggle, run or try to kick the rapist where it counts. If she does, the rapist is likely to silence her by strangling her or cracking her skull open. Struggling excites him. What's more, very few women are good enough at self defense to throw a would-be rapist and make a run for safety. As for carrying a weapon, he says it would probably be in her purse – the first thing a woman drops when someone grabs her.

Pleading, according to Mr .Storaska, is the rapist's pornography. It would merely intensify his desire. If a victim denounced him and shrieked obscenities, it would only heighten hisrage and he would become even more dangerous. (The rapist is, as you know, not a woman-lover, but a woman-hater. His actions are not based on the desire for sex, but his deep-seated irrational loathing of women.)

Mr. Storaska believes the best way to deal with a rapist is to turn him off by belching, scratching, vomiting -- something that will divert him from the act. Mr. Storaska does suggest, however, that if a woman feels her life is in danger she should press her attacker's eyeballs into his head as hard as she can if she can reach them. This could blind or kill him.

While Mr. Storaska admits that reporting a rape to the police is a distasteful business, he says all women who have undergone the experience have a responsibility to society to report it in the hope that the rapist will be caught. Catching a rapist and convicting him, however, are not one and the same thing. About 65 per cent of all rapists who stand trial, according to this expert, are found "not guilty." – Avid Ann Fan

Dear Av: Thank you for another point of view. We now have two contradictory sets of instructions. Dr. James Selkin, Director of the Center for the Study of Violence at Denver General Hospital, says, "Scream, kick, yell your head off -- unless the rapist enters the bedroom and puts a gun to your head or a knife to your throat."

It's up to each woman to decide which makes the best sense. Selkin's position is supported by some impressive statistics. Fewer than nine per cent of the Denver women who scramed and fought back suffered anything more than a cut or a bruise.

Dear Ann Landers: I have long, beautiful fingernails. They are my best "feature," if you can call them that. What I mean is, I get more compliments on my nails than on anything else.

My boyfriend loves to bowl. Every time I have gone bowling with him, I've broken at least two nails. I refuse to bowl anymore and he is very upset with me. Is he being fair? What should I do? -- Nailed In N.J.

Dear N.J.: Go with him -- as a spectator. Be his cheering section. Applaud his efforts. Build up his ego. That should satisfy him. If it doesn't -- too bad.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers's booklet, "Booze and You – For Teen-Agers Only." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Packet available for brides

PERRYVILLE - June is the month for weddings and it is a good time to be reminded that your local University of Missouri Extension Center has a free "Bride Packet" What is a bride packet.. It is a collection of information selected by the Southeast Area University of Missouri extension home economists which they feel will be of great value to new homemakers.

Some of the publication titles included in the packet are:

"Stain Removal from Washable Fabrics," "Everyday Gyps," "Purpose of Life Insurance," "The Care and Simple Repair of Household Equipment," "Shop for Used Furniture," "Keep Food Safe to Eat." "Conserving the Nutritive Value of Food." "Family Fare" (cookbook), "Pre-Marital Counseling" and "Record Changes for Newlyweds." These and many more useful brochures a bride and bride groom need to read or study can be found in the packet.

If you are a new bride or know someone who is, be sure to request a bride packet. Also available are the "New Mother Packet" and the "Preschool Packet" full of information for the new baby's parents and parents of preschoolers.

To receive and one or all three packets, just call or write your local University of Missouri Extension Center.

Late bottle-feeding can cause decay of children's primary "baby" teeth

CHICAGO (AP) — Dentists are seeing a large number of children whose baby teeth are badly decayed because the infants go to bed with a nursing bottle, a Chicago child dentistry specialist says.

Such decay may result in extensive and expensive surgery and may even roduce damage to the permanent teeth, Dr. Robert Cooley said.

Cooley, chairman of the pedodontics department at Northwestern University dental school and director of dental services at Children's Memorial Hospital, said in an interview he performs surgery on at least one child a week for this problem and sometimes two or three.

He said there are no studies showing how widespread the problem is nationwide but that other dentists also report seeing such decay.

The primary teeth, or so-called baby teeth, start emerging at about 6 months. The problem of decay is seen in children 18 to 30 months of age who are given bottles for prolonged periods, Cooley said.

These children are put to bed for a nap or a night's sleep with a bottle filled with soft drinks, fruit juice, sugar water or other sweetened liquid, or a pacifier dipped in honey, he said.

But even milk is known to cause decay when nursed from a bottle for a long period of time because the enzymes in the mouth convert lactose — milk sugar — to glucose, a type of sugar which can contribute to decay, Cooley said.

By the time a child is a year old he should be weaned from the bottle anyway and taught to drink from a cup and eat solid food, which helps clean the teeth, Cooley said.

Once young children have decayed teeth, they must be hospitalized for dental repair because they cannot cooperate in the dentist's office. Cooley said two or three hours of surgery is necessary and it must be done under general anesthetic. The operation and hospital stay may cost $700 to $900, he said.

Ann Landers

Avid reader writes in another method suggested to protect frightened women against attackers

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed two letters in the last several weeks advising women on how best to protect themselves against rape. The last letter advised screaming, kicking, karate chops, etc. I hope you will print my letter which is based on informatin from an expert. He is Frederic Storaska, founder of the National Organization for the Prevention of Rape and Assault.

According to Mr. Storaska, a woman should never scream, struggle, run or try to kick the rapist where it counts. If she does, the rapist is likely to silence her by strangling her or cracking her skull open. Struggling excites him. What's more, very few women are good enough at self defense to throw a would-be rapist and make a run for safety. As for carrying a weapon, he says it would probably be in her purse -- the first thing a woman drops when someone grabs her.

Pleading, according to Mr .Storaska, is the rapist's pornography. It would merely intensify his desire. If a victim denounced him and shrieked obscenities, it would only heighten hisrage and he would become even more dangerous. (The rapist is, as you know, not a woman-lover, but a woman-hater. His actions are not based on the desire for sex, but his deep-seated irrational loathing of women.)

Mr. Storaska believes the best way to deal with a rapist is to turn him off by belching, scratching, vomiting -- something that will divert him from the act. Mr. Storaska does suggest, however, that if a woman feels her life is in danger she should press her attacker's eyeballs into his head as hard as she can if she can reach them. This could blind or kill him.

While Mr. Storaska admits that reporting a rape to the police is a distasteful business, he says all women who have undergone the experience have a responsibility to society to report it in the hope that the rapist will be caught. Catching a rapist and convicting him, however, are not one and the same thing. About 65 per cent of all rapists who stand trial, according to this expert, are found "not guilty." – Avid Ann Fan

Dear Av: Thank you for another point of view. We now have two contradictory sets of instructions. Dr. James Selkin, Director of the Center for the Study of Violence at Denver General Hospital, says, "Scream, kick, yell your head off -- unless the rapist enters the bedroom and puts a gun to your head or a knife to your throat."

It's up to each woman to decide which makes the best sense. Selkin's position is supported by some impressive statistics. Fewer than nine per cent of the Denver women who scramed and fought back suffered anything more than a cut or a bruise.

Dear Ann Landers: I have long, beautiful fingernails. They are my best "feature," if you can call them that. What I mean is, I get more compliments on my nails than on anything else.

My boyfriend loves to bowl. Every time I have gone bowling with him, I've broken at least two nails. I refuse to bowl anymore and he is very upset with me. Is he being fair? What should I do? -- Nailed In N.J.

Dear N.J.: Go with him -- as a spectator. Be his cheering section. Applaud his efforts. Build up his ego. That should satisfy him. If it doesn't -- too bad.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers's booklet, "Booze and You – For Teen-Agers Only." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Mrs. Joe Wilson

Rader-Wilson

RISCO — Miss Lora Lea Rader and Joe Darrell Wilson exchanged marriage vows May 17 at the Pleasant View General Baptist Church. The Rev. Ervin Razer officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Alta Rader of Risco and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wilson of Malden.

The bride wore a Victorian gown of white bridal satin with a slightly raised waistline above a slightly gathered skirt. The bodice featured a high neckline edged with lace and accented by a lace medallion at center front. Lace trim accented a pin-tucked chiffon inset yoke on the bodice front and trimmed the upper part of the full, sheer sleeves. Wide, lace bands at the cuffs were accented by beads and sequins. A wide lace ruffle formed the hemline and a flowing back train was trimmed in lace covered with beads and sequins.

She wore a beaded lace mantilla attached to a three-tiered veil of illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white carnations accented with white satin streamers.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Carolyn Payne of Horn Lake, Miss., sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Mary Irvin of Malden and Mrs. Chiquetta Gullett of Horn Lake, sisters of the bride.

Mike Coffer of Risco was best man, and Paul Wilson and Tommy Wicker of Malden were groomsmen.

Paul Wilson was usher. Susan Gullett of Horn Lake and Sandra Wilson of Risco were candlelighters.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall.

Mrs. Wilson is a 1975 grqduate of Risco High School.

Wilson is a 1974 graduate of Risco High School and is employed with Sterling Variet Stores, Inc. in Perryville.

The couple lives on Route Four Perryville.

Whitehead-Wilson

Miss Teresa L. Whitehead, 164 Presnell Drive, and Derek Wilson, 308 Illinois ave., were united in marriage May 25 at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Dexter. Father Gosche officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Whitehead of Dexter and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beaudean , 308 Illinois Ave., Sikeston.

The bride wore a gown that featured antique lace and a V-neckline. The dress was trimmed with pink roses. She wore a headpiece of baby's breath and carried a bouquet of pink and white daisies and carnations accented with baby's breath, green lemon leaves and rainbow-colored streamers.

Matron of honor was Mrs. James Whitehead of Pontiac, Mich.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. John Whithead of Albion, Mich. and Mrs. Sharon Stevens of Bernie.

Best man was Danny Crawford. Groomsmen were Danny Fugate and John Vines. Mark Carlisle was usher.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the church hall.

Mrs. Wilson is a 1971 graduate of Oxford High School at Oxford, Mich. She is employed with Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston and will be a registered nursing student at Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau.

Wilson is a 1970 graduate of Sikeston High School and is also employed with Missouri Delta Community Hospital. He attends Mo State University.

Bombeck leaves behind family survival manual

No one knows what their life expectancy is, but I have a horror of leaving this world and not having anyone in the entire family know how to replace a toilet tissue spindle.

It's an awesome thought ot have four grown people wandering around in a daze saying, "I thought she told you how," and another saying, "If I knew she was sick I'd have paid attention."

The tissue spindle isn't the only home skill that has been mastered by no one at our house. Consequently, I have put together a simply family survival manual when Mom is away...even for a weekend.

REPLACING TOILET TISSUE SPINDLE: Grasp old spindle and push gently to one side where there is a spring action. The spindle will release and you discard the old cardboard. Slip on new roll and insert one end of spindle in the spring action side and listen for a click into place.

WASHING TOOTHPASTE OFF SIDE OF WASHBOWL: Before toothpaste is allowed to harden-become a permanent part of the enamel, swish water from faucet over affected areas and give a gentle nudge with washcloth or hands. Sink will be ready for next slobee.

TURNING ON STOVE: Hot meals require a hot stove. If the stove is gas, ignite by turning dial or handle and hold match over burner. If stove is electric, take forefinger and push firmly on button of desired heat. Caution: Do not put food directly on burner, but put it in a pan first.

CLOSING A DOOR: This looks harder than it is. When door is ajar, make sure it is free of foreign objects (children, feet of salesmen or packages), then grasp it firmly by the handle and give it a push until you hear it click. Slamming the door will not make it close any firmer than a push.

TURNING OFF A LIGHT: The same principle is used in turning off a light as it is turning it on. If it is a wall switch, you flick the switch up or down until you no longer see the light. If it is a chain mechanism, you compress chain between thumb and forefinger and give it a tug. The light will extinguish.

CHOCOLATE-TOPPED OATMEAL BARS

..1 package coconut almond or coconut pecan frosting mix
3 cups rolled oats
1 cup solid shortening or margarine, softened
1-2 cup sugar
6- ounce package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces.
3-4 cup peanut butter.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In large bowl, blend first four ingredients at low speed until crumbly. Press mixture into ungreased 15-10-inch jelly roll pan or 13-9-inch pan. Bake 15 to 20 minutes until light golden brown. In small saucepan, combine chocolate pieces and peanut butter. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until chocolate pieces are melted.

Spread over bars. Chill; cut into bars. Store in refrigerator. Two to three dozen bars.

Designs are found anywhere

By ELSA WILLIAMS

Design is where you find it and you'll often find it in the most unexpected places. Among the patterns in my book on bargello is a lovely shaded chevron. Persons who've worked it tell me it's one of their favorites. Guess where I found it? At a gas station!

Another pattern was "inspired" by my husband's argyle socks.

I remember a grape cluster motif I created for a woman who wanted a needlepoint fruit design for her dining room chairs. I liked the sketch and felt it was perfect for her chair seats. But with color added the grapes looked flat, no zip or vitality. Help came from a grape juice ad. The illustration was a bunch of grapes in luscious purple tones.

These are not isolated examples. When you're working on flower or fruit designs, you can find ideas in seed catalogues and books on gardening. Encyclopedias are gold mines of small colorful closeups.

You won't want to copy any one picture exactly, In fact, when I'm working on a flower - daisy, rose , bluebell or whatever — I like to have different pictures of the same flower in front of me. Seeing a single variety of blossom from several angles helps me to focus more accurately on the shape of the petals, gives me a better idea of whether the flower center should be done with coral stitches or French knots and helps me decide how to shade the colors to mirrorthe velvety look of the flower.

Be a magpie. Read magazines and catalogs with scissors in hand and make yourself a set of folders in different categories — fruit, flowers, ships, birds, houses, fish. You'll find these folders will provide you with a wealth of inspiration. Any time you decide that you need help with a design, you'll have the reference material right at hand.

A single flower or a piece of fruit not only makes a charming small motif but also can serve as a stitch sampler while you're learning to embroider. You can do petals in long and short stitches or French knots, lazy daisy or curved bullion. Stems and leaves can combine stem outline, satin and long-and-short stitches.

The chrysanthemum sketched here is done with massed lazy daisy stitches that shade deeper at the flower's center. Each petal has a deeper-toned straight stitch through its center. The leaves are long and short stitches with darker accents.

Dear Elsa,

Do you have any suggestions for distinctive small embroidery projects that would be suitable for a church bazaar?

D.N.

Dear D.N.,

Why not try cutting a piece of fabric and centering a small flower or leaf motif on it, then use it to make a crewel embroidered coat hanger. A small bargello motif could also be mounted on a covered coat hanger.

For a free illustrated leaflet showing the basic embroidery stitches write to Elsa Williams, Box 3788, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.

INDIA – To help women, who often bring their babies and young children to work sites in this vast country, CARE has built temporary nurseries at a number of self-help projects. A trained social worker cares for the children and a doctor makes periodic health checks while mothers are instructed in proper nutrition for their children.

NEW YORK -- Ethel Spore, a spunky 69-year-old woman, who began her nursing career at age 40, served several tours of overseas duty with CARE-MEDICO before retiring at 65. Later, following a five-month freighter trip around the world, she returned to CARE-MEDICO to complete another overseas assingment in Amman, Jordan. At present Ms. Spore is awaiting her next adventure.

KENYA – New interests of emerging women were evidenced here recently when a CARE executive inspected a CARE-built school for girls. After holding up signs expressing gratitude for the school and supplies, the girls unveiled a large sign reading, "May we also have a science laboratory?" Last year such CARE self-help projects and CARE-MEDICO health aid benefited more than two million people in developing countries.

Dear D.N.,

Why not try cutting a piece of fabric and centering a small flower or leaf motif on it, then use it to make a crewel embroidered coat hanger. A small bargello motif could also be mounted on a covered coat hanger.

For a free illustrated leaflet showing the basic embroidery stitches write to Elsa Williams, Box 3788, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Household hints

INDIA – To help women, who often bring their babies and young children to work sites in this vast country, CARE has built temporary nurseries at a number of self-help projects. A trained social worker cares for the children and a doctor makes periodic health checks while mothers are instructed in proper nutrition for their children.

---

NEW YORK -- Ethel Spore, a spunky 69-year-old woman, who began her nursing career at age 40, served several tours of overseas duty with CARE-MEDICO before retiring at 65. Later, following a five-month freighter trip around the world, she returned to CARE-MEDICO to complete another overseas assingment in Amman, Jordan. At present Ms. Spore is awaiting her next adventure.

---

KENYA – New interests of emerging women were evidenced here recently when a CARE executive inspected a CARE-built school for girls. After holding up signs expressing gratitude for the school and supplies, the girls unveiled a large sign reading, "May we also have a science laboratory?" Last year such CARE self-help projects and CARE-MEDICO health aid benefited more than two million people in developing countries.

Dead bills for this session listed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — An Equal Rights Amendment resolution was among the hundreds of proposals that failed to pass the Missouri Legislature this session.

Of the bills clearing the legislature, Gov. Christopher S. Bond vetoed a 47 per cent pay raise for lawmakers and $6.2 million for a new optometry school at the University of Missouri-St. Louis.

Other measures that didn't clear the legislative hurdle before final adjournment at midnight Sunday include bills:

-To start a new cigarette tax to fund mass transportation.

-Providing a modified no-fault car insurance system for Missouri.

-Toughening milk sales practices laws.

-Changing the state school aid formula to provide more funds for metropolitan districts and rural districts with a low assessed valuation.

-Revising the campaign finance law approved by Missouri voters last November.

-Creating small claims courts.

-Creating a drug and crime control division in the Highway Patrol.

-Revising the state's judicial structure to eliminate magistrates and other lower courts.

-Requiring a majority instead of two-thirds vote to raise local tax levies for schools.

-Increasing state income tax deductions by $100 in three categories.

-Requiring property to be assessed at 30 per cent of value rather than 33 1-3 per cent for local taxes.

-Revising the state's criminal code to make penalties more uniform and strike archaic laws.

-Dividing the state's mental health program into districts and setting up community centers.

-Raising the state sales tax from 3 per cent to 4 per cent.

-Removing the sales tax on food and prescription medicines.

-Strengthening the conflict of interest law.

-Prohibiting sex discrimination or marital status bias on loans or credit cards.

-Allowing public employes to form unions and bargain collectively.

-Allowing longer and heavier trucks on Missouri highways.

-Giving lawmakers and secretary of state more control over initiatives and referendums.

-Allowing bingo for charitable purposes.

-Setting up minimum jail standards.

-Establishing truth in repair bills and consumer protection in debt collecting.

-Regulating guns and requiring their registration.

-Extending the half cent sales tax in the state's metropolitan districts to finance mass transportation.

-Regulating billboards to keep Missouri in federal compliance.

State 4-H Council winners

Winners in races for area representatives on the State 4-H Council from the southeast precinct from left, are Tom Weisel of Cuba, Steve Branstetter of Hartville, Dennis James of Cape Girardeau, Alan Slayton of Naylor and Billy LeGrand of Illmo. The five were victors in the recent 1975 State 4-H Week on the University of Missouri-Columbia campus.

10 killed in May in traffic accidents

POPLAR BLUFF — Ten persons were killed during May and 176 were injured in 310 Southeast Missouri traffic accidents, according to highway patrol figures compiled in the13-county Troop E area. The 10 fatalities raised the number of deaths to 34 and the number of persons injured to 584 for the year.

In the four-county area of Scott, Stoddard, Mississippi and New Madrid during May, three persons were killed and 64 injured in 94 accidents.

New Madrid County produced 14 injuries and no fatalities in 30 accidents, bringing the number of injuries for the year to 44.

One fatality and 22 injuries were recorded in 27 Stoddard County accidents, raising the number of deaths in the county to two and injuries to 59 during 1975.

Two persons were killed and 14 injured in 19 Mississippi County accidents. For the year, five fatalities and 39 injuries have been recorded in the county.

Scott County had 18 accidents resulting in 14 persons injured and no deaths in May, as the number of persons injured in the county this year rose to 47. Three fatalities occurred earlier in the year.

Two fatalities also occurred in Butler County, two in Ripley County and one each in Cape Girardeau, Iron and Pemiscot counties during May.

In releasing the statistics, the Troop E staff said, "May brought a rash of accidents because someone didn't look or obey all traffic laws."

The patrol advises, "As we start the summer-time vacation period, many problems arise to cause serious accidents and financial troubles. We would encourage motorists to pay attention to driving habits. This business of not giving a signal when changing lanes and making right and left turns needs to cease. Other people have the right to live, so use your turn signals.

"When you stop at an intersection, train your eyes from the intersection proper and this will let you see every car or object on the road. Look first to the left and then to the right before you pull out onto another highway. When you do pull out, stay in one lane andmove on. Stay with the traffic; other people have places to go."

Junior Miss is crowned

ESSEX—Ten-year-old Karen Cain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Cain of Essex, was crowned Essex Bicentennial Junior Miss Thursday evening at Richland High School.

Twenty-four girls competed for the honor of reigning over all of Essex's Bicentennial activitues during the coming year.

First attendant was Glenna Lankford, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Lankford. The second attendant was Linda Conner, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.L. Conner of Parma.

Miss Cain was crowned by Essex Mayor R.G. Langley.

The event was the first of many scheduled to be carried out from July of 1975 to July of 1976.

The official dedication ceremonies will be held at 10 a.m. July 19 at the Essex Mini Park, followed by a reception in the Essex Community Building.

A Bicentennial beautification program headed by the Essex City Council will include red, white, and blue flowers being planted within the city. Trash barrels will be painted in the same colors. Fire Hydrants will be painted as revolutionary soldiers and a small mural will be painted on a side of a downtown building.

A Bicentennial picnic will be held in July of 1976, sponsored by the Lions Club.

Other events will include old fashioned days, sponsored by the Essex Merchants; a Kraft Day, sponsored by the Essex Senior Citizens; an old-fashioned tent service; a Bicentennial fashion show; tours through historical buildings, and a Country Fair Baking Contest.

A Bicentennial Children's day has been scheduled for March of 1976, silent films will be shown in April and four dogwood trees will be planted in June by the Essex Boy and Girl Scouts.

POTEET CANYON IS NOT MRS. STEVE CANYON
-- BUT SHE HASN'T GIVEN UP TRYING!

A U. S. Air Attache in a Latin country has been killed by terrorists and Steve Canyon is ordered to investigate the circumstances of his death.

On the plane Steve is startled when the stewardess asks his seatmate to move -- "so Mr. and Mrs. Canyon may sit together."

Only then does Steve discover that Poteet Canyon has been assigned to the same inquiry because the slain officer was a native of High City and his wife and family still live there.

Poteet's old, banked fire for Steve flares up again in the distant and romantic Latin land.

How will Steve react to Poteet's pitch?

Young, fueled with the desire to defeat the bus transit bill and pass his billboard bill, shouted, "I have the floor. I have the floor."

Phelps, the president of the Senate, attempted to begin a roll call vote on Conway's bill despite Young's objections, but President Pro Tem William Cason intervened.

Failure to pass the bus sales tax bill "could result in a special session," Cason said, "but nevertheless the Senate must have full discussion on the proposal."

The one-half cent sales tax for transportation would have been extended to Dec. 31, 1977 under Conway's bill. It would fund Kansas City's Area Transit Authority and the Bi-State Transit System in St. Louis and St. Louis County.

House Speaker Richard Rabbitt's position that 11 per cent of the transit money in St. Louis be set aside for rail development met stif opposition in the Senate.

"This is the first time I've seen the Senate show guts," said Brentwood Republican A. Clifford Jones as he urged support for sending the transit bill back to the House and asking Rabbitt to recede from his position.

After the bill died, Rabbitt said that it wasn't the rail paln that killed the bill.

"It was the vindictiveness of some of the senators over there. I found it hard to believe that some of the senators could be that irresponsible," the St. Louis Democrat said.

Young, a chief opponent of the transit tax, has made no secret of his feelings for Rabbitt, since the House Speaker gained the upper hand in an earlier dispute over appropriatons for St. Louis buildings.

Rabbitt said he did not think a special session would be needed to further fund the transit systems, and Cason said, "I wouldn't want to hazard a guess if a special session would be needed."

Gov. Christopher S. Bond said, "I question whether the people of Missouri would want to spend $560,000 for a special session to produce a solution to the transit problem."

He said it was "not clear if Missouri will lose the $12 million in federal funds by failing to approve the billboard measure.

The billboard bill would have required the taking down of outdoor advertising now located within 660 feet of certain highways. It was needed to comply with the federal Highway Beautification Act, which already governs the building of signs within the 660-foot corridor. The bill also would have the state compensate the owners of billboards which were removed to comply with the law.

The bill failed to gain passage because of a dispute between the House and Senate as to how the Missouri Highway Department would establish rules for the taking down of signs. The issue centered over whether the legislature could approve the department's rules.

Bond said about four states have failed to go along with the compliance law and that the state Highway Department would look into the situation.

Kennedys may have known of CIA kill-plots

WASHINGTON (AP) — President John F. Kennedy and his brother Robert may have known of Central Intelligence Agency plots to kill foreign leaders, Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller suggests.

Rockefeller raised the possibility Sunday as he defended the absence of any details on alleged assassinations in the report prepared by the commission he headed in an investigation of the CIA.

In an appearance on NBC's "Meet the Press," Rockefeller said he had no proof the Kennedy brothers knew of CIA assassination plots. But he said the deaths of the Kennedys and a "real problem of amnesia among those still around" made it impossible for the Rockefeller Commission to reach positive conclusions about any White House involvement in CIA assassination plots.

After saying the evidence was inconclusive, Rockefeller added:

"I think it's fair to say that no major undertakings by CIA were done without either knowledge and-or approval of the White House."

There has been no public evidence linking either John or Robert Kennedy to plots to kill foreign leaders. Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, of the Senate Intelligence Committee said Friday that his panel has developed no evidence to directly link any president with assassination plots or attempts.

In response to Rockefeller's statement, two former aides to Robert Kennedy, Adam Walinsky and Frank Mankiewicz, issued a statement saying:

"The White House and Sen. Church have both stated flatly there is no evidence that either John or Robert Kennedy were involved in any way in assassination attempts. Either Rockefeller has not read his own report or he is deliberately lying."

Evidence developed by the Rockefeller Commission concerning allegations of CIA assassination plots was not contained in its report, but was passed on privately to President Ford. Rockefeller said he expects Ford will share it with the Church investigation of the CIA.

Black Muslims reveal assets

CHICAGO (AP) — The Black Muslims have assets of at least $46 million, the new leader of the separatist sect said as he broke almost a half-century of secrecy about the group's financial worth.

Both the money and the membership of the Nation of Islam, as the Black Muslims are formally known, have been closely guarded secrets since Elijah Muhammad founded the religious sect during the Depression. The membership is still unknown.

Elijah Muhammad died last Feb. 26. His son and successor, Wallace Muhammad, made his first public appearance as the Nation of Islam's supreme minister on Sunday.

In a move aimed at dissolving any doubts about the transition of power from father to son, another powerful Black Muslim leader, Abdul Aleem Farrakin of New York City, told the rally of 20,000 persons:

"We (the Nation of Islam) are continuing the work of the Honorable Elijah Muhammad and are evolving into what he predicted we would."

Wallace Muhammad also told the rally that there was no power struggle within the sect.

Muhammad said the Nation of Islam had reached the stability necessary to make some of its assets known.

He said the group's wealth was a "dream which has become reality."

But he said he wouldn't disclose all of the assets because "there are still some things that you have to keep secret."

Supreme Court to review decision on natural gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to review a decision which the Federal Power Commission said would seriously hamper efforts to alleviate the natural gas shortage.

The court will consider a ruling of the U.S. court of appeals in Washington that the commission may not give natural-gas producers built-in authority to shut off the gas supply of interstate pipelines when their contracts expire.

The procedure was challenged by 21 members of Congress who arguedit was a backdoor approach to the administration's goal of deregulation of natural gas supplies at the wellhead, which Congress has refused to approve.

Federal law requires a natural gas producer to obtain approval from the Federal Power Commission before discontinuing interstate sales.

The court of appeals said this approval cannot be given in advance, as contemplated by the new procedure.

"It was the vindictiveness of some of the senators over there. I found it hard to believe that some of the senators could be that irresponsible," the St. Louis Democrat said.

Young, a chief opponent of the transit tax, has made no secret of his feelings for Rabbitt, since the House Speaker gained the upper hand in an earlier dispute over appropriatons for St. Louis buildings.

Rabbitt said he did not think a special session would be needed to further fund the transit systems, and Cason said, "I wouldn't want to hazard a guess if a special session would be needed."

Gov. Christopher S. Bond said, "I question whether the people of Missouri would want to spend $560,000 for a special session to produce a solution to the transit problem."

He said it was "not clear if Missouri will lose the $12 million in federal funds by failing to approve the billboard measure.

The billboard bill would have required the taking down of outdoor advertising now located within 660 feet of certain highways. It was needed to comply with the federal Highway Beautification Act, which already governs the building of signs within the 660-foot corridor. The bill also would have the state compensate the owners of billboards which were removed to comply with the law.

The bill failed to gain passage because of a dispute between the House and Senate as to how the Missouri Highway Department would establish rules for the taking down of signs. The issue centered over whether the legislature could approve the department's rules.

Bond said about four states have failed to go along with the compliance law and that the state Highway Department would look into the situation.

Kennedys may have known of CIA kill-plots

WASHINGTON (AP) — President John F. Kennedy and his brother Robert may have known of Central Intelligence Agency plots to kill foreign leaders, Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller suggests.

Rockefeller raised the possibility Sunday as he defended the absence of any details on alleged assassinations in the report prepared by the commission he headed in an investigation of the CIA.

In an appearance on NBC's "Meet the Press," Rockefeller said he had no proof the Kennedy brothers knew of CIA assassination plots. But he said the deaths of the Kennedys and a "real problem of amnesia among those still around" made it impossible for the Rockefeller Commission to reach positive conclusions about any White House involvement in CIA assassination plots.

After saying the evidence was inconclusive, Rockefeller added:

"I think it's fair to say that no major undertakings by CIA were done without either knowledge and-or approval of the White House."

There has been no public evidence linking either John or Robert Kennedy to plots to kill foreign leaders. Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, of the Senate Intelligence Committee said Friday that his panel has developed no evidence to directly link any president with assassination plots or attempts.

In response to Rockefeller's statement, two former aides to Robert Kennedy, Adam Walinsky and Frank Mankiewicz, issued a statement saying:

"The White House and Sen. Church have both stated flatly there is no evidence that either John or Robert Kennedy were involved in any way in assassination attempts. Either Rockefeller has not read his own report or he is deliberately lying."

Evidence developed by the Rockefeller Commission concerning allegations of CIA assassination plots was not contained in its report, but was passed on privately to President Ford. Rockefeller said he expects Ford will share it with the Church investigation of the CIA.

Black Muslims reveal assets

CHICAGO (AP) — The Black Muslims have assets of at least $46 million, the new leader of the separatist sect said as he broke almost a half-century of secrecy about the group's financial worth.

Both the money and the membership of the Nation of Islam, as the Black Muslims are formally known, have been closely guarded secrets since Elijah Muhammad founded the religious sect during the Depression. The membership is still unknown.

Elijah Muhammad died last Feb. 26. His son and successor, Wallace Muhammad, made his first public appearance as the Nation of Islam's supreme minister on Sunday.

In a move aimed at dissolving any doubts about the transition of power from father to son, another powerful Black Muslim leader, Abdul Aleem Farrakin of New York City, told the rally of 20,000 persons:

"We (the Nation of Islam) are continuing the work of the Honorable Elijah Muhammad and are evolving into what he predicted we would."

Wallace Muhammad also told the rally that there was no power struggle within the sect.

Muhammad said the Nation of Islam had reached the stability necessary to make some of its assets known.

He said the group's wealth was a "dream which has become reality."

But he said he wouldn't disclose all of the assets because "there are still some things that you have to keep secret."

Supreme Court to review decision on natural gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to review a decision which the Federal Power Commission said would seriously hamper efforts to alleviate the natural gas shortage.

The court will consider a ruling of the U.S. court of appeals in Washington that the commission may not give natural-gas producers built-in authority to shut off the gas supply of interstate pipelines when their contracts expire.

The procedure was challenged by 21 members of Congress who arguedit was a backdoor approach to the administration's goal of deregulation of natural gas supplies at the wellhead, which Congress has refused to approve.

Federal law requires a natural gas producer to obtain approval from the Federal Power Commission before discontinuing interstate sales.

The court of appeals said this approval cannot be given in advance, as contemplated by the new procedure.

Smith homers for Lions

Pitching continued to rule the Little League circuit at the city sports complex.

Friday night, Ryan relied on the four hitter of Lambert to blank Righter 10-0; Fabick rode the three hitter of Shane Deal to a 7-3 victory over Ziengenhorn; Malone & Hyde stormed past Harst 13-1 behind the one hit gem of Cook and the Lions turned back Lewis Furniture 9-5 in the only other league action reported.

Only one homer was recorded on the scoresheets furnished the Daily Standard, that coming off the bat of Smith in Lions victory. That homer highlighted a six run rally that erased a 5-3 LW lead.

Pitching was the big factor in the two American league games reported. Fabick rode the three hit pitching of deal and three hit batting performance of Allcork past Ziegenhorn, who got a four hitter from Rob Griffin and a two hit hitting performance from Nall.

Baker, Bloemer and Dodd had three hits each in leading a 15 hit Ryan attack.

In the lone National league game reported, Smith collected three hits in leading the Lions 9-5 victory and seven hit attack. Seiler had two hits to pace Lewis Furniture's six hit offense.

M & H rallied from a 2-1 deficit with 12 runs in the last three inning to crumble Harts 13-1 behind the one hit pitching gem of Cook.

Pitching rules JBR

Pitching was the key factor in Jr. Babe Ruth league action Friday night as Elliott-Newton edged Home Materials 8-7 and Nowell downed the Bank of Sikeston 11-2.

Doyle hurled a four hitter for E&N, who rallied from a 5-0 deficit with a big six run third inning rally and then charged from a 7-all deadlock with a one run fifth.

Young had two hits, including a double to pace E&N's victory.

Cox mastered a two hitter for Nowell and worked six innings, allowing two runs and eight walks while fanning eight.

Lawrence and Nowell paced Nowell's five hit offense with two hits each. Lawrence and Lucky doubled for the game only extra base hits.

SPORTS

AUTO RACING

LE MANS, France — Jacky Ickx of Belgium and Derek Bell of Britain in a Gulf-Ford won the 43rd Le Mans 24-hour race after leading for all but three hours.

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich. — David Pearson, driving a Mercury, fought off the challenge of Richard Petty to win the Motor State 400 NASCAR Grand National auto race.

MOSPORT, Ont. — Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., led all the way and held off the constant challenge of England's Brian Redman in winning the Formula 5000 auto race.

GOLF

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland — Nancy Roth Syms of Colorado Springs, Colo., beat 17-year-old Suzanne Cadden of Scotland 3 and 2 to win the British Women's Amateur Golf Championship.

PHILADELPHIA — Tom Jenkins holds a five-stroke lead over Jim Dent after two rounds of the rain-delayed $150,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic.

Saints win 9th

Kenny Urhahn and Jeff Jackson teamed to lead the Sikeston Saints to a 14-3 romp in the first game. Then, an eight-run fifth gave the Saints a sweep of the twin-bill and a 10-0 win as the Sikeston unit raced to their ninth straight win, this time over Puxico.

Urhahn pitched a two-hitter and fanned 12 in the opener. He received a lot of hitting support as Jackson slammed two homers and drove in five. Jim Saulter added another round-tripper and a double and drove home four. John Leible was three-for-three with a circuit clout. The Saints scored eight times in the second to lead 10-0 and were never headed.

A two-run fourth broke a scoreless tie, then eight more crossed the plate in the fifth and the second game of the twin-bill was called by the ten-run rule. Donny Taylor picked up the win by fanning the side in the fifth. Mitch Walker had started and hurled the first four innings of scoreless ball, retiring in the fifth with a sore pitching arm. Bruce Lawrence was the second game hitting star, reaching base three times, including two hits.

The doubleheader opened the season for Puxico, who have had troubles with the weatherman. The host Saints took advantage of ill-prepared pitchers for 24 hits and runs. Next Saints games will be Wednesday night when two opponents will fight the undefeated squad. At 6:30 the Saints face the Stags. Then, following that, Bertrand will take on the Saints in a makeup game.

Smith homers for Lions

Pitching continued to rule the Little League circuit at the city sports complex.

Friday night, Ryan relied on the four hitter of Lambert to blank Righter 10-0; Fabick rode the three hitter of Shane Deal to a 7-3 victory over Ziengenhorn; Malone & Hyde stormed past Harst 13-1 behind the one hit gem of Cook and the Lions turned back Lewis Furniture 9-5 in the only other league action reported.

Only one homer was recorded on the scoresheets furnished the Daily Standard, that coming off the bat of Smith in Lions victory. That homer highlighted a six run rally that erased a 5-3 LW lead.

Pitching was the big factor in the two American league games reported. Fabick rode the three hit pitching of deal and three hit batting performance of Allcork past Ziegenhorn, who got a four hitter from Rob Griffin and a two hit hitting performance from Nall.

Baker, Bloemer and Dodd had three hits each in leading a 15 hit Ryan attack.

In the lone National league game reported, Smith collected three hits in leading the Lions 9-5 victory and seven hit attack. Seiler had two hits to pace Lewis Furniture's six hit offense.

M & H rallied from a 2-1 deficit with 12 runs in the last three inning to crumble Harts 13-1 behind the one hit pitching gem of Cook.

Pitching rules JBR

Pitching was the key factor in Jr. Babe Ruth league action Friday night as Elliott-Newton edged Home Materials 8-7 and Nowell downed the Bank of Sikeston 11-2.

Doyle hurled a four hitter for E&N, who rallied from a 5-0 deficit with a big six run third inning rally and then charged from a 7-all deadlock with a one run fifth.

Young had two hits, including a double to pace E&N's victory.

Cox mastered a two hitter for Nowell and worked six innings, allowing two runs and eight walks while fanning eight.

Lawrence and Nowell paced Nowell's five hit offense with two hits each. Lawrence and Lucky doubled for the game only extra base hits.

Saints win 9th

Kenny Urhahn and Jeff Jackson teamed to lead the Sikeston Saints to a 14-3 romp in the first game. Then, an eight-run fifth gave the Saints a sweep of the twin-bill and a 10-0 win as the Sikeston unit raced to their ninth straight win, this time over Puxico.

Urhahn pitched a two-hitter and fanned 12 in the opener. He received a lot of hitting support as Jackson slammed two homers and drove in five. Jim Saulter added another round-tripper and a double and drove home four. John Leible was three-for-three with a circuit clout. The Saints scored eight times in the second to lead 10-0 and were never headed.

A two-run fourth broke a scoreless tie, then eight more crossed the plate in the fifth and the second game of the twin-bill was called by the ten-run rule. Donny Taylor picked up the win by fanning the side in the fifth. Mitch Walker had started and hurled the first four innings of scoreless ball, retiring in the fifth with a sore pitching arm. Bruce Lawrence was the second game hitting star, reaching base three times, including two hits.

The doubleheader opened the season for Puxico, who have had troubles with the weatherman. The host Saints took advantage of ill-prepared pitchers for 24 hits and runs. Next Saints games will be Wednesday night when two opponents will fight the undefeated squad. At 6:30 the Saints face the Stags. Then, following that, Bertrand will take on the Saints in a makeup game.

Cardinals lose on grand slam blast

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Three opponent errors helped the Houston Astros to a come-from-behind win Sunday but not like the bat of reserve Cliff Johnson.

The muscular Johnson was sent up to pinch-hit in the ninth inning and responded with a grand slam home run that sent the Astros to an 8-7 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"You have to think home run," acknowledged Johnson, whose one-out blast to straightaway center erased a 7-4 Cards lead and pinned the loss on reliever Mike Garman, 2-3.

"We didn't have anyone else on the bench with the capability of hitting the home run," he added. "I'm just glad it happened the way it did."

Johnson's home run, his sixth in a pinch-hit role in the past two years, would not have occurred except for two of the costly Cardinal miscues.

Strong-fielding Mario Guerrero fumbled Greg Gross' grounder just long enough to permit a baserunner and kindle Houston hopes at the outset of the ninth.

Al Hrabosky of the Cards then fanned Roger Metzger but was laced for a single by Cesar Cedeno and Bob Watson reached base on Ron Fairly's error at first.

Garman next was summoned when Johnson was announced to hit for Astros catcher Skip Jutze, and he delivered a pitch out of the strike zone before Johnson connected.

"The pitch was even a little inside," lamented Garman in respect to the Johnson wallop, a drive carrying about 415 feet over the wall on a low trajectory.

"You have to give him credit for it," Garman added, however. "That's what he's getting paid for. Next time I'll get him."

Preceding the Houston rally, St. Louis had spotted the Astros a 1-0 lead and surged on top by 4-1 only to fall victim later to a first error afield.

A wild throw by Reggie Smith enabled the Astros to knot the score at 4-4 with three unearned runs in the sixth, then the Cards countered with three in the eighth for their 7-4 edge.

Wasted by St. Louis, which outhit the Astros by 15-12, were back-to-back solo home runs off the bats of Willie Davis and Smith in the third.

"I like to play. I don't think there's any doubt about it," the 6-foot-4 Johnson, a Houston bench-warmer despite his four homers and 22 runs batted in, reflected.

"Every day I come to the ball park and don't see my name in the lineup and I'm ticked off," he said. "I'm not content at all not playing. I think a person with my talent should be used to bat four or five times a night as opposed to once."

Birds call pitcher

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals were expected to add another player to their roster today after a pair of transactions Sunday night left them one short of the 25-man limit, a team spokesman said.

On the eve of the deadline for trading Sunday night, St. Louis placed two players on waivers and swapped players with their Tulsa farm club.

Placed on waivers for the purpose of giving them their unconditional release were outfielder Don Hahn and first baseman Danny Cater. At the same time, the Cardinals announced the promotion of first baseman Doug Howard from Tulsa.

The Red Birds later optioned the contract of outfielder Jim Dwyer to Tulsa in exchange for the contract of right-handed pitcher Mike Barlow.

Hahn, 26, batted .143 in five games with the Cardinals after being picked up last month as a free agent following his release by the Philadelphia Phillies. He played previously with the New York Mets.

Cater, 35, was obtained during spring training from the Boston Red Sox and was hitting .229 in 22 games.

At Tulsa, the 27-year-old Howard was hitting .336 with eight homers and 39 runs batted in.

Dwyer had appeared in 21 games as a pinch-hitter for the Cardinals and was hitting .194.

Barlow, 6-feet-6, started the season with Oakland's Tucson farm team where he was 4-1. He came to the Cardinals organization in May and was 1-0 at Tulsa.

Texas claims series title

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The great Texas baseball drought is over.

The second-ranked Longhorns captured their third national crown Saturday night by toppling South Carolina 5-1 in the College World Series as Richard Wortham pitched a masterful four-hitter.

But it was Texas' first title in the classic in 25 years.

"We felt that when Southern Cal didn't qualify for the tournament, that we would take it all," said Coach Cliff Gustafson, whose teams had three thirds and a fourth as Southern Cal was reeling off five successive titles from 1970 on.

Texas captured consecutive series crowns in 1949 and 1950 and qualified 15 times thereafter before finally winning another.

"The whole ballclub played well, like a champions," said Gustafson, whose team was second-ranked most of the season and finished 56-6.

Only Southern Cal with 10 titles in the 29-year history of the tournament has more crowns than the Longhorns, and Gustafson might have them back again next year.

Wortham, fellow pitching ace Jim Gideon, who won two series games, plus five regulars were taken in the summer draft and may sign.

Wortham was the story of the title game.

"I felt like I had something to prove," he said after a nine strikout performance. "I don't think I ever wanted to prove anything so badly.

"I didn't pitch that bad in my first series game, but I lost."

And the same could be said of his teammates, who put together three impressive victories after Wortham lost a 5-2 decision to Arizona State in the second round of the eight-team tournament.

Koch aces 13th

Markus Koch booked a hole-in-one on the famed 13th hole at the Sikeston country club Sunday in celebrating Fathers Day. The hole is a par three, 135 yard shot.

Bill and Joy Pickett were golfing with Koch when the ace was recorded. It was Koch's first hole in one.

Cardinals lose on grand slam blast

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Three opponent errors helped the Houston Astros to a come-from-behind win Sunday but not like the bat of reserve Cliff Johnson.

The muscular Johnson was sent up to pinch-hit in the ninth inning and responded with a grand slam home run that sent the Astros to an 8-7 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"You have to think home run," acknowledged Johnson, whose one-out blast to straightaway center erased a 7-4 Cards lead and pinned the loss on reliever Mike Garman, 2-3.

"We didn't have anyone else on the bench with the capability of hitting the home run," he added. "I'm just glad it happened the way it did."

Johnson's home run, his sixth in a pinch-hit role in the past two years, would not have occurred except for two of the costly Cardinal miscues.

Strong-fielding Mario Guerrero fumbled Greg Gross' grounder just long enough to permit a baserunner and kindle Houston hopes at the outset of the ninth.

Al Hrabosky of the Cards then fanned Roger Metzger but was laced for a single by Cesar Cedeno and Bob Watson reached base on Ron Fairly's error at first.

Garman next was summoned when Johnson was announced to hit for Astros catcher Skip Jutze, and he delivered a pitch out of the strike zone before Johnson connected.

"The pitch was even a little inside," lamented Garman in respect to the Johnson wallop, a drive carrying about 415 feet over the wall on a low trajectory.

"You have to give him credit for it," Garman added, however. "That's what he's getting paid for. Next time I'll get him."

Preceding the Houston rally, St. Louis had spotted the Astros a 1-0 lead and surged on top by 4-1 only to fall victim later to a first error afield.

A wild throw by Reggie Smith enabled the Astros to knot the score at 4-4 with three unearned runs in the sixth, then the Cards countered with three in the eighth for their 7-4 edge.

Wasted by St. Louis, which outhit the Astros by 15-12, were back-to-back solo home runs off the bats of Willie Davis and Smith in the third.

"I like to play. I don't think there's any doubt about it," the 6-foot-4 Johnson, a Houston bench-warmer despite his four homers and 22 runs batted in, reflected.

"Every day I come to the ball park and don't see my name in the lineup and I'm ticked off," he said. "I'm not content at all not playing. I think a person with my talent should be used to bat four or five times a night as opposed to once."

Birds call pitcher

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals were expected to add another player to their roster today after a pair of transactions Sunday night left them one short of the 25-man limit, a team spokesman said.

On the eve of the deadline for trading Sunday night, St. Louis placed two players on waivers and swapped players with their Tulsa farm club.

Placed on waivers for the purpose of giving them their unconditional release were outfielder Don Hahn and first baseman Danny Cater. At the same time, the Cardinals announced the promotion of first baseman Doug Howard from Tulsa.

The Red Birds later optioned the contract of outfielder Jim Dwyer to Tulsa in exchange for the contract of right-handed pitcher Mike Barlow.

Hahn, 26, batted .143 in five games with the Cardinals after being picked up last month as a free agent following his release by the Philadelphia Phillies. He played previously with the New York Mets.

Cater, 35, was obtained during spring training from the Boston Red Sox and was hitting .229 in 22 games.

At Tulsa, the 27-year-old Howard was hitting .336 with eight homers and 39 runs batted in.

Dwyer had appeared in 21 games as a pinch-hitter for the Cardinals and was hitting .194.

Barlow, 6-feet-6, started the season with Oakland's Tucson farm team where he was 4-1. He came to the Cardinals organization in May and was 1-0 at Tulsa.

Texas claims series title

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The great Texas baseball drought is over.

The second-ranked Longhorns captured their third national crown Saturday night by toppling South Carolina 5-1 in the College World Series as Richard Wortham pitched a masterful four-hitter.

But it was Texas' first title in the classic in 25 years.

"We felt that when Southern Cal didn't qualify for the tournament, that we would take it all," said Coach Cliff Gustafson, whose teams had three thirds and a fourth as Southern Cal was reeling off five successive titles from 1970 on.

Texas captured consecutive series crowns in 1949 and 1950 and qualified 15 times thereafter before finally winning another.

"The whole ballclub played well, like a champions," said Gustafson, whose team was second-ranked most of the season and finished 56-6.

Only Southern Cal with 10 titles in the 29-year history of the tournament has more crowns than the Longhorns, and Gustafson might have them back again next year.

Wortham, fellow pitching ace Jim Gideon, who won two series games, plus five regulars were taken in the summer draft and may sign.

Wortham was the story of the title game.

"I felt like I had something to prove," he said after a nine strikout performance. "I don't think I ever wanted to prove anything so badly.

"I didn't pitch that bad in my first series game, but I lost."

And the same could be said of his teammates, who put together three impressive victories after Wortham lost a 5-2 decision to Arizona State in the second round of the eight-team tournament.

What's the law?

The case of the downed pedestrian

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Herbie was a law-abiding citizen who obeyed all duly anointed authorities. Consequently, when a riot took place and National Guardsmen ordered everybody out of the area, Herbie, who just happened to be walking by at the time, broke into a sweat and then a high-stepping run.

Unfortunately, however, he didn't run fast enough. A bullet from a Guardsman's rifle quickly caught up with him and sent him to a hospital for a lengthy stay.

When ultimately released from the hospital, Herbie sued the U. S. Government for his injuries.

"It was pure negligence," charged Hervie in court. "There was a time when the only thing an innocent pedestrian had to fear was a speeding automobile. Now, he's got to worry about poor marksmanship."

"While it was unfortunate that HHerbie got shot." responded a U.S. Attorney, "the government can't be held liable. Since the bullet was fired intentionally, even though Hervie may not have been the target, it was a willful and not a negligent act. And citizens have no authority to sue the government for such willful acts of its employes."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit law-abiding Herbie to collect for the Guardsman's alleged negligence?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held, in effect, that Hervie's asserted injuries were not the result of negligence, but, rather the result of an assault and battery. And, noted the judge, citizens are not permitted by law to sue the U. S. Government for assault and battery committed by persons, such as National Guradsmen, acting to suppress a riot.

(Based upon a 1971 United States District Court Decision)

Stoner and Cox give insights

JEFFERSON CITY — For Rep. William Stoner, it wasn't the problems inherent in the legislative process that was surprising, but the number of hours involved. Sen. Hardin Cox found a competent group of colleagues receptive to his ideas and suggestions.

The representative and the senator gave their impressionsof their first terms as the first regular session of the 78th General Assembly drew to a close last week.

"I am not shocked, disillusioned or disappointed," Stoner said as he took time out from a lengthy floor debate over the revision of the state criminal code. "It is just what I thought it would be."

Stoner did not anticipate, however, the demands his legislative duties would place on his time. "If done properly, this is a full-time job," he said.

A lawyer, Stone's legal practice had to undergo a complete readjustment to his new work schedule. He now practices law on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

There are changes he would like to see in the legislative process. One is the reduction of the size of the 163-member House of Representatives. Another is an increase in the legislative salary, now $8,400 annually (Gov. Christopher S. Bond votoed a $4,000 pay hike approved this session).

"There are too many people here who are of necessity overly dependent on special interest groups," Stoner said. "The cure forthat is to increase the salaries so that the common citizen can have the job, too."

Stoner placed the House membership in five categories: lawyers; older, retired persons; wealthy persons with nothing better to do; single persons with no family responsibilities; and "thieves".

Despite his views about some legislators, Stoner said the representatives as a body perform their duties conscientiously.

"I am satisfied that, on balance, the legislature deals with the issues that need to be dealt with," he said. "Sometimes the greatest thing the legislature can do is defeat bills that need to be defeated."

While accepting most of the legislature's weaknesses as a part of the system, Stoner is dissatisfied with the appropriations process. He said many of the appropriations compromises between the House and Senate are worked out between the respective committee chairman, resultingin "rule not by committee, but by subcommittee."

Cox, a veteran of 10 years in the House, was impressed most by the quality of the lawmakers he found in the Senate. He said he can reason with fellow senators easier than he could with some House members.

Cox sees an advantage in the small size of the Senate, especially when he wants to make his voice heard during Senate action.

"I did not anticipate they would accept my position as well as they did," the Rock Port Democrat said. "But they accepted it, and I appreciate that."

Independence of senatorial voting habits also surprised Cox. "I have more difficulty figuring the vote in the Senate," he said. "Over in the House, I could just about figure it out. But over here, the vote has really thrown me several times."

Besides the dignity and decorum that pervades the Senate, Cox also feels the Senate as a body "sticks together more." Support for his view surfaced during the appropriations battles with the House. The Senate came out of the fight with most of what it wanted in a $213 million higher education bill.

But it is all over for this session. Despite the long hours and heated debates just behind them, both men indicated an eagerness to return for the next session.

Grand jury lists Boone County as drug center

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A Boone County grand jury concluded almost six weeks of investigating by reporting Columbia and the county have become a major source and distribution center for illicit drugs in central Missouri.

At least four of the 22 indictments returned Thursday by the grand jury charged the accused with selling heroin. Some others involved amphetamines. Several indictments were not made public immediately because those accused were not in custody.

The grand jury said in its report that several neighboring counties have traced their drug abuse problems to Boone County.

It found there has been an alarming increase in the use and sale of heroin in the county. Several large-scale drug dealers in Columbia have made big profits and are using them to buy into legitimate businesses, the report said.

The grand jury noted that the purity of heroin involved in most drug cases throughout the country is 3 to 8 per cent, but it said heroin tracked down in Boone County has run 23 to 23 per cent.

The jury took this as an indication that dealers in Boone County are fairly close to those who import the drug and are able to make a big profit in diluting it to a strength acceptable to those who buy it "on the street."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit law-abiding Herbie to collect for the Guardsman's alleged negligence?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held, in effect, that Hervie's asserted injuries were not the result of negligence, but, rather the result of an assault and battery. And, noted the judge, citizens are not permitted by law to sue the U. S. Government for assault and battery committed by persons, such as National Guradsmen, acting to suppress a riot.

Stoner and Cox give insights

JEFFERSON CITY — For Rep. William Stoner, it wasn't the problems inherent in the legislative process that was surprising, but the number of hours involved. Sen. Hardin Cox found a competent group of colleagues receptive to his ideas and suggestions.

The representative and the senator gave their impressionsof their first terms as the first regular session of the 78th General Assembly drew to a close last week.

"I am not shocked, disillusioned or disappointed," Stoner said as he took time out from a lengthy floor debate over the revision of the state criminal code. "It is just what I thought it would be."

Stoner did not anticipate, however, the demands his legislative duties would place on his time. "If done properly, this is a full-time job," he said.

A lawyer, Stone's legal practice had to undergo a complete readjustment to his new work schedule. He now practices law on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

There are changes he would like to see in the legislative process. One is the reduction of the size of the 163-member House of Representatives. Another is an increase in the legislative salary, now $8,400 annually (Gov. Christopher S. Bond votoed a $4,000 pay hike approved this session).

"There are too many people here who are of necessity overly dependent on special interest groups," Stoner said. "The cure forthat is to increase the salaries so that the common citizen can have the job, too."

Stoner placed the House membership in five categories: lawyers; older, retired persons; wealthy persons with nothing better to do; single persons with no family responsibilities; and "thieves".

Despite his views about some legislators, Stoner said the representatives as a body perform their duties conscientiously.

"I am satisfied that, on balance, the legislature deals with the issues that need to be dealt with," he said. "Sometimes the greatest thing the legislature can do is defeat bills that need to be defeated."

While accepting most of the legislature's weaknesses as a part of the system, Stoner is dissatisfied with the appropriations process. He said many of the appropriations compromises between the House and Senate are worked out between the respective committee chairman, resultingin "rule not by committee, but by subcommittee."

Cox, a veteran of 10 years in the House, was impressed most by the quality of the lawmakers he found in the Senate. He said he can reason with fellow senators easier than he could with some House members.

Cox sees an advantage in the small size of the Senate, especially when he wants to make his voice heard during Senate action.

"I did not anticipate they would accept my position as well as they did," the Rock Port Democrat said. "But they accepted it, and I appreciate that."

Independence of senatorial voting habits also surprised Cox. "I have more difficulty figuring the vote in the Senate," he said. "Over in the House, I could just about figure it out. But over here, the vote has really thrown me several times."

Besides the dignity and decorum that pervades the Senate, Cox also feels the Senate as a body "sticks together more." Support for his view surfaced during the appropriations battles with the House. The Senate came out of the fight with most of what it wanted in a $213 million higher education bill.

But it is all over for this session. Despite the long hours and heated debates just behind them, both men indicated an eagerness to return for the next session.

Grand jury lists Boone County as drug center

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A Boone County grand jury concluded almost six weeks of investigating by reporting Columbia and the county have become a major source and distribution center for illicit drugs in central Missouri.

At least four of the 22 indictments returned Thursday by the grand jury charged the accused with selling heroin. Some others involved amphetamines. Several indictments were not made public immediately because those accused were not in custody.

The grand jury said in its report that several neighboring counties have traced their drug abuse problems to Boone County.

It found there has been an alarming increase in the use and sale of heroin in the county. Several large-scale drug dealers in Columbia have made big profits and are using them to buy into legitimate businesses, the report said.

The grand jury noted that the purity of heroin involved in most drug cases throughout the country is 3 to 8 per cent, but it said heroin tracked down in Boone County has run 23 to 23 per cent.

The jury took this as an indication that dealers in Boone County are fairly close to those who import the drug and are able to make a big profit in diluting it to a strength acceptable to those who buy it "on the street."

A 'brief review' is given by a puzled industry

(Editor's note: The following story is reprinted from The Wall Street Journal, written by David M. Elsner, staff reporter).

Don't look now, but the bottom has fallen out of the men's underwear market.

And the tops, too.

Business has dropped off considerably," acknowledges Jack Wyss, president of Jockey International Inc., Kenosha, Wis. "Some people must be getting cold."

"I've never seen anything like it," says A. Byron Reed, president of Munsingwear Inc., a Minneapolis maker of both men's and women's undergarments and sleepwear.

"It's the only part of our business that's down. If America took off its collective pants, you'd find a lot of shabby underwear."

Indeed, the underwear issue has even received congressional attention. At a recent session of the House Ways and Means Committee, which was discussing an energy bill, Rep. James Burke, a Massachusetts Democrat, proposed that consumers be given a tax credit for buying awnings and long underwear, as both helped conserve energy. Besides, underwear makers need the help, he added. The committee voted down the awnings idea and didn't consider the longjohns question.

While precise figures aren't available, industry sources estimate that unit sales through the first part of this year were running 10 per cent to 15 per cent below last year, when retailers sold an estimated 1.3 billion new undershirts and shorts for some $660 million.

Compared with automobile sales, say, that may not sound like a precipitous falloff. But the men's underwear business always has held up before--even during recessions--with a steady, if unspectacular, increase of 4 per cent or so yearly, Reed says. Indeed, the only other sales decline of note came in 1934 after Clark Gable took off his shirt in "It Happened One Night" to reveal a bare chest; undershirt sales are said to have dropped 75 per cent that year.

But what's behind the drop this time?

For one thing, cotton underpants that sold for three-for-$4 a couple of years ago now cost $5.50. T-shirts that sold three-for-$5 now are $7. That rise followed long years of price stability.

Retailers also note that they've experienced great difficulty during the current recession in selling any kind of "replacement" clothing (as opposed to "fashion" apparel), and most underwear clearly falls into the replacement category. "After all, it's easy to make do with tattered underwear when it doesn't show," observes Bill Blass, the men's fashion designer who doesn't design underwear but does keep upon what men think about clothing. Supporting Blass' no-show contention is the fact that shipments of men's socks, whose holes can be covered with shoes, dropped by 18 per cent in the first quarter.

Blass has a second theory as well. He suggests that a growing number of men aren't wearing underwear at all. "A French newspaper survey found that a number of men felt that underwear kept in too much heat, which hurt their virility," he says, adding that American fashion usually copies the European.

Some underwear makers agree that men who wear tightfitting blue jeans and the like may find that conventional underwear is uncomfortable, as it tends to "ride up."

"I've done without it myself on occasion," admits Thomas Goetz, product manager for Eagle Shirtmaker Inc.'s recently introduced Pierre Cardin line of brightly colored, Mini-Brief fashion underwear.

"In fact, we were going to market our underpants in a six-pack with an advertising promotion that said that the Carin man doesn't wear underwear on Saturday. But we decided against it."

Underwear, originally worn to protect the body from irritation by coarse outerwear, dates back at least to the 25th Century B.C. Egyptian nobility as represented in drawings found on ancient walls, appears to have been the first to wear a loincloth as an undergarment beneath an outer skirt, according to historians--making underwear an early status symbol.

The more modern undershort probably stems from the often brightly colored breeches worn by the Saxons in England at the time of the Norman invasion in 1066. The Normans required the Saxons to don tunics, but the rebellious Saxons continued to wear their breeches underneath as a sign of defiance.

Styles gradually changed. In this century, athletic-style undershirts were copies after the tops of men's swimsuits, and underpants were reproductions of boxers' trunks. Only within the last five years has the boxer short been supplanted by the Jockey brief as the most favored style.

Fashion underwear for men also has made its mark, growing from practically nothing to about 15 per cent of the total underwear market in about five years. The idea caught on in the U.S. when Medici Industries Inc., a maker of gaily patterned sport shirts, in searching for a use for its leftover scraps, started making "Mini-Briefs."

Fashion underwear does have certain drawbacks, however. The shorts and tops are cut rather skimpily, and only lean men find them comfortable, wearers say. In addition, most fashion styles cost considerably more than conventional cotton underwear, from about $4.50 to $10 a pair. Despite all this, retailers say fashion styles are selling much better now that they did a year ago.

Although there are signs that the worst of the great underwear drop may be over, manufacturers plan to introduce more fashion items in hopes of stimulating sales. Jockey, for instance, late last year came out with a brief that doubles as a swimsuit, and Wyss says a couple of new models will be uncovered in November. Munsingwear and others have begun to market conventional cotton items in colors, and also produce matching patterned tops-and-bottoms sets.

Still, it's the basic white cotton brief that manufacturers are counting on to make a comeback. "After all, underwear has got to wear out sometime," Munsingwear's Reed reasons. "And," continues the executive, "I think it's damned uncomfortable if you don't wear any."

Legislature and governor have many differences

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The legislative pay raise that never was, the eye school that failed to see the light of day and gubernatorial appointees that will never serve, point up the battle that never let up between Gov. Christopher S. Bond and the Missouri Legislature.

The 1975 General Assembly ended at midnight Sunday, June 15.

Bond vetoed the raise and the St. Louis Eye school. And the Senate was uncooperative by rejecting Bond appointments to the state Public Service Commission and the University of Missouri Board of Curators.

The first regular session of the 78th General Assembly was a session of conflict between the Republican cheif executive and the Democratically-controlled legislature.

"The legislature passed something for everbody except the tax increase to pay for it," Bond said shortly after adjournemnt.

On the other hand, Senate President Pro Tem William Cason praised lawmakers for holding expenditures in line.

In the midst of it all, many of the priorities set for the session by both the executive and legislative branches fell by the wayside. Of nearly 1,500 bills introduced, only about one-tenth were sent to Bond.

In a last ditch effort to salvage some of the priorities, House Speaker Richard Rabbitt resorted under heavy criticisms to maneuvering several bills to a separate docket to bring them up for consideration before the session ended. He defended the move as clearing the way for a "more successful" session.

Among the seven bills pushed ahead by Rabbitt were a change in the new campaign finance law, a St. Louis-Kansas City police pay raise and full funding for Missouri Western and Missouri Southern state colleges.

Each passed except the campaign finance revision to exempt candidates spending less than $500 from income disclosure requirements, which was tabled in the House and died.

Other major bills that made it to Bond's desk include restoration of the death penalty, raising maximum unemployment benefits from $67 to $85 weekly, restricting corporate farming, allowing doctors to form nonprofit organizations to insure themselves for malpractice and strengthening the state's child abuse laws.

Also passed were measures to stiffen welfare fraud penalties, toughen lobbyist laws, regulate rock festivals, extend the 55 miles per hour speed limit two years and exempt 111 of the state's 114 counties from the solid waste disposal law.

Tax relief for the elderly and a $5 per family member increase in Aid to Dependent Children payments—listed by leaders as a top prioroty—won approval.

The legislature also asked congress to convene a constitutional convention to draw up an amendment prohibiting abortions.

But falling by the wayside was a massive revison of the state's 140-year-old criminal code, singled out on the opening day of the session by Speaker Rabbitt and House Majority Floor Leader Kenneth Rothman as a top priority.

A collective bargaining bill for public employes and a revised public school funding measure which passed the House were defeated by the Senate and time ran out for other bills to modernize the General Assembly and require more billboards to come down along interstate roads.

Defeated was the Equal Rights Amendment, which cleared the House but failed in the Senate, as did other bills establishing jail standards and setting up small claims courts.

ERA was one of the many programs which Bond supported. Of 23 bills listed by Bond as most urgent, only 10 were passed, but not necessarilyin the form he proposed.

The governor said the legislature "overspent" the 1976 budget by $15.3 million in bills that have been sent to his desk.

Dr. Lamb

Could she have saved a life?

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband, at age 47, died from a myocardial infarction when we were visiting out of town overnight. He was a heavy smoker.

He seemed to feel fine all day, was felling amorous at bedtime, then went back downstairs and was coughing hard. Vaguely I heard vomiting, but went immediately back to sleep. About two hours later I was awakened by moans, went downstairs and found him lying on the sofa with fists clenched tight against his throat and chest. I couldn't arouse him, so turned on the table lamp. He was perspiring heavily. I ran for a towel and just then his breathing ceased.

Feeling no pulse or heartbeat I ran upstairs and awakened my brother and wife. It was a half hour wait for the ambulance to drive the 20 miles over country roads.

My husband was on medication for high blood pressure and was dissatisfied with his job. His weight was normal.

My thoughts during those crucial moments were that he had pneumonia (he had had it before) from the labored sound of his breathing, the earlier coughing and the heavy sweating.

I just read an article, "Could You Save Your Husband's Life?" in a woman's magazine. I suppose I'll always wonder if I could have. It's my wish that more people learn the symptoms and what to do, and where to get training. Please keep urging readers to have checkups and their blood pressure checked regularly. This article claimed that one man died 10 minutes after his wife tried unsuccessfully to reach his doctor. What would you advise in this situation?

DEAR READER — I know it must have been a terrible shock to you. Your husband had two of the three important risk factors that increase the likelihood of having a heart attack, cigarette smoking and high blood pressure. He may also have had a high cholesterol. It is important for people to realize that heart attacks occur in men with high risk factors in early life. It is not a disease of old age.

The coughing may well have been from the accumulation of fluid in the lungs that may happen with a heart attack. Both vomiting and sweating are often part of the picture of a heart attack.

For more detailed information on what to do when a heart attack occurs, write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019 and ask for The Health Letter number 2-10, Heart Attack: When It Strikes. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for mailing and costs.

The local chapters of the American Heart Assn. can give you some handouts describing what to do to treat heart arrest when it occurs. They can also give you information on available community instruction.

I think that everyone should have an idea of how to maintain circulation when the heart stops. The problem is so common in our society that this is now far more important than knowing how to treat drowning victims.

My best advice when you can't reach the doctor, and you have reason to think you may have a heart attack, is to call an ambulance to to to the hospital. If you can't get an ambulance, someone can try to drive the victim to the emergency room. Try to reach your doctor first, then use the ambulance.

House member resigns

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A member of the Missouri House resigned shortly before the midnight adjournment Sunday while a member of the Senate maintained that he had not decided whether to complete his term or take a job with the state.

Fifth term House member James P. Mulvaney took the oath of office as a member of the Missouri Public Service Commission two minutes after the House adjourned the 1975 session. The oath was administered by Supreme Court Judge John Bardgett. Mulvaney had been confirmed to the post only minutes earlier by the Senate.

"I appreciate your providing the Public Service Commission and the state of Missouri with this fine man," Gov. Christopher S. Bond told the House members shortly after Mulvaney took the oath of office.

Grain cut is failure

READSVILLE, Mo. (AP) — A Callaway County farmer who organized an effort to cut grain production in March and April says that movement was a failure.

James Hickman of rural Readsville said Sunday in an interview with radio station KFRU in Columbia that farmers in a four-county area in central Missouri did not withhold production.

Hickman said the group, called the United Farmers Organization, advocated cutting grain production to keep farm prices high.

Hickman criticized the federal government this spring for pushing full production, saying it would lead to a drastic drop in prices farmers receive for grain.

Hickman said the effort to cut production failed because most farmers ignored the issue. He predicted farmers may unite yet this fall if they find a drastic drop in farm prices because of overproduction.

135 bills passed during session

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The death penalty for premeditated murder was one of about 135 bills approved by the Missouri Legislature this session.

Other major proposals sent to the governor by the time the session adjourned at midnight Sunday include measures:

-Boosting maximum unemployment benefits from $67 to $85 a week.

-Tightening regulations on lobbyists.

-Restricting corporate farming.

-Strengthening the state's child abuse laws.

-Providing a pay raise for state judges.

-Increasing Aid for Dependent Children $5 per family member each month.

-Allowing doctors to form non-profit associations to insure themselves for malpractice.

-Allowing most junior college districts to raise their maximum operating levy to 40 cents per $100 of assessed valuation from 30 cents.

-Extending 55 mile an hour speed limit two years.

-Stiffening penalties for welfare fraud.

-Exempting 111 of the state's 114 counties and towns under 500 population from the solid waste disposal law.

-Regulating rock festivals.

-Assessing farmland at use value rather than market value for taxing purposes.

-Adding a new classification to the drunk driving law.

-Providing full state funding for Missouri Western and Missouri Southern state colleges.

-Increasing tax relief for the elderly.

A 'brief review' is given by a puzled industry

(Editor's note: The following story is reprinted from The Wall Street Journal, written by David M. Elsner, staff reporter).

Don't look now, but the bottom has fallen out of the men's underwear market.

And the tops, too.

Business has dropped off considerably," acknowledges Jack Wyss, president of Jockey International Inc., Kenosha, Wis. "Some people must be getting cold."

"I've never seen anything like it," says A. Byron Reed, president of Munsingwear Inc., a Minneapolis maker of both men's and women's undergarments and sleepwear.

"It's the only part of our business that's down. If America took off its collective pants, you'd find a lot of shabby underwear."

Indeed, the underwear issue has even received congressional attention. At a recent session of the House Ways and Means Committee, which was discussing an energy bill, Rep. James Burke, a Massachusetts Democrat, proposed that consumers be given a tax credit for buying awnings and long underwear, as both helped conserve energy. Besides, underwear makers need the help, he added. The committee voted down the awnings idea and didn't consider the longjohns question.

While precise figures aren't available, industry sources estimate that unit sales through the first part of this year were running 10 per cent to 15 per cent below last year, when retailers sold an estimated 1.3 billion new undershirts and shorts for some $660 million.

Compared with automobile sales, say, that may not sound like a precipitous falloff. But the men's underwear business always has held up before--even during recessions--with a steady, if unspectacular, increase of 4 per cent or so yearly, Reed says. Indeed, the only other sales decline of note came in 1934 after Clark Gable took off his shirt in "It Happened One Night" to reveal a bare chest; undershirt sales are said to have dropped 75 per cent that year.

But what's behind the drop this time?

For one thing, cotton underpants that sold for three-for-$4 a couple of years ago now cost $5.50. T-shirts that sold three-for-$5 now are $7. That rise followed long years of price stability.

Retailers also note that they've experienced great difficulty during the current recession in selling any kind of "replacement" clothing (as opposed to "fashion" apparel), and most underwear clearly falls into the replacement category. "After all, it's easy to make do with tattered underwear when it doesn't show," observes Bill Blass, the men's fashion designer who doesn't design underwear but does keep upon what men think about clothing. # Record high in benefits paid

JEFFERSON CITY — More than $32 million in unemployment insurance benefit payments – a new all-time high – was issued to about 124,000 unemployed workers in Missouri during May, of which $623,152 in benefits were distributed in the four-county area of Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid and Stoddard counties.

Despite the record high paid out in benefits, John F. Meystrik, director of the Missouri Division of Employment Security, said the number of persons claiming benefits statewide was down from 130,000 in April and 145,000 in March and that state programs accounted for $27,571,216 of the total.

Federal programs paid out $2,754,760 in extended benefits (EB) -- paid when regular benefits are exhausted; $1,042,327 in supplemental benefits (FSB) -- paid when regular and extended benefits are exhausted; $63,301 in additional supplemental benefits (AFSB) -- paid when regular federal supplemental benefits are exhausted; and $1,126,079 in special unemployment assistance (SUA) — paid to workers not ordinarily covered by unemployment insurance.

In the four-county Bootheel area, Stoddard County unemployed workers received a total of $221,344 under both state and federal programs. The state paid $198,487 and the federal government paid $8,650 in the EB program, $16,636 in SUA, $3,457 in FSB and $114 in AFSB.

In Scott County, the state paid $131,873 and the federal government paid $80,643 in EB, $5,770 in SUA, $1,565 in FSB and $285 in AFSB.

In Mississippi County, the state paid $76,774 and the federal government paid $6,107 in EB, $16,602 in SUA, $1,991 in FSB and $170 in AFSB.

In New Madrid County, the state paid $49,925 and the federal government paid $4,891 in EB, $22,762 in SUA, $2,374 in FSB and $166 in AFSB.

Totals paid in federal and state programs through other Southeast Missouri offices included $571,745 at Cape Girardeau, $161,724 at Caruthersville, $357,537 at Kennett and $511,154 at Poplar Bluff.

Saipan to vote on becoming a United States territory

SAIPAN (AP) — Strategically important land within bomber range of Southeast Asia will become United States territory if residents of the Marianas Islands vote Tuesday to become U.S. citizens.

If a least 55 per cent of the voters in the plebiscite approve, the Marianas will become a U.S. commonwealth, the first new territory acquired by the United States since 1925.

It will be the islanders' first chance to choose their own form of government after 300 years of domination by Spain, Germany, Japan and the United States.

Many observers here say voters will approve the commonwealth covenant, which would give the Marianas a relationship to the United States similar to Puerto Rico's.

But the campaign has been hot, with speeches on local radio and television and meetings even in outlying villages.

"If the United States only wants our islands for military purposes, my strong feeling is that we must raise our price sky high, because our lives are at stake," says Abel Olopai, a leading opponent of the covenant.

Backers of the covenant appeal for the votes of the 5,500 eligible persons with photographs contrasting the backwardness of thatched huts with the promise of prosperity represented by rush-hour traffic on Saipan's two-lane main road.

Under the covenant the United States would pay $19.5 million for a 100-year lease on about 18,000 acres, most of that on Tinian Island, where the military has talked of building a $300 million base. The United States would provide $14 million a year in direct aid for seven years, and the Marianas could participate in some federal grant programs.

Islanders would elect their own governor and legislature to deal with local affairs.

Commonwealth status would separate the 16 Marianas islands from the rest of the U.S. Trust Territory of the Pacific — 2,100 islands with a total land area smaller than Rhode Island's dotted over three million square miles of ocean. Since 1947, when the United Nations declared it a stategic trusteeship, the United States has governed the territory through a high commissioner appointed by the President.

Many Americans remember the Marianas as the scene of some of the bloodiest fighting of World War II. Wreckage from the battle for Saipan is still strewn along sparkling beaches and across densely overgrown landscape.
